TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Editor.

Mr. Uriah Wilson has been in parliament over twenty years. As a sample of the way he does not look after the interests of his constituents I would call the attention of the electors to the condition of the Napanee River. What has he done to get it dredged? The channel filling up so that the larger craft cannot and do not attempt to navigate. The poor service for the past few years is due to the fact that the steamers do not care to assume the risk of the dangers of the channel. Vessels are crowding in upon the channel and several wheels and rudders were broken by sunken logs. The steamers that ought to be carrying the trade to Napanee are taking it to Kingston and Picton because no new steamers will come upon such a treacherous route. If Mr. Wilson knew his business he would have had this attended long ago

A Voter.

Mr Editor.

I would, as a Forester, like to ask Mr. Uriah Wilson why he seeks to make that man Foster the Finance Minister of Canada? Will Uriah Wilson condemn Foster because Foster pocketed $2480 of the moneys belonging to the widows and orphans of the Foresters of Canada for doing what he was already paid a salary of several thousand dollars for doing? Will Uriah Wilson condemn Foster for taking a commission of $5000 from Pritchard upon a deal with moneys extended to his keeping? How long would Mr. Wilson keep a servant in his home who kept a commission out of all purchases from his butcher and baker? The maxims of this grand order teach us to be true and faithful to each other and to abjure hypocrisy. How true is Mr. Foster with the sacred trust of the moneys of the widows and orphans of the Foresters? How sincere is Uriah Wilson when he talks now upon the eve of election of imaginary graft that he had not the manliness to mention in the house? How sincere is such a man to talk such rot and at the same time is ready to polish Foster's shoes or bow down to him as his new idol? Either come out like a man and say I will not act under Foster as a leader, I will not be his puppet any longer or confess to the truth that you don't give a rap for the electors of Lennox and Addington so long as you can fool them a little longer and go back to Ottawa for another four years and draw your $2500 a year and hold up the coat tails of the ex-finance minister, Foster, while he continues to pocket the widows and orphans money. If you think you are serving the Foresters of Lennox and Addington by upholding the man who is misusing their funds, your ideas of right and wrong are very much out of place.

MR. EDITOR.

Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to express my views upon the subject referred to last week in the letter of a life-long conservative? I have four neighbors, all conservatives, who have made the same remark to me during the last twelve months. While I am not a hide-horned toby, yet I have voted for Mr. Wilson in the past, but cannot do so any longer, nor will my four neighbors about mentioned. For twelve years the Laurier government has been in power. During these years Mr. Wilson has been there in Ottawa, sent there by the people of Lennox and Addington to protect their interest, who chloroformed him, that he didn't see any of this rascality he is now talking about? Why did he go to sleep while the treasury was being robbed? Oh no, Uriah, you are no sort of man to send to Ottawa if you can't find any fault with the government until after the last session, and just before the election, Uriah, you were paid $2,500 to do our business, and now you come back and ask me to send you down there again to earn $2,500 a year, and you admit by your own campaign of slander, that you didn't discover any of this wrong-doing during these last four years until the parliament was ended. Now you want to go back for four years more to get $10,000, and what do you intend to do for it? Do you really want to do something for our country, or do you want the $10,000? You have done pretty well, Uriah. The public treasury doesn't owe you anything. $30,000, for doing nothing, during the last 20 years is a pretty soft thing. Many of us who have voted for you time and again have risen early, worked twelve and fourteen hours a day, and have retired pretty well played out at night. We have done it for twenty years while you have been salting the $30,000 received by you from the public trough. Lots of us would be glad to be able to show $2,500 for ten years sweat and toil, while you got $2,500 a year for sitting in a comfortable seat at Ottawa. No, Mr. Editor, the farmers of this country are not babes and sucklings. There was a time, long ago, when the political ring-leader would snap his whip and we would all dance to his fiddle. We have got some of the scales off our eyes. When we were children we could be scared by the bug-a-boo man, but now we are full grown men and are not scared near so easily. Why this sudden cry of corruption? Why all this talk about grafters, just before the election? I never did since I was a boy, care much for a man who would carry rotten eggs around in his pocket ready to throw at everybody he doesn't like, for some day some of these will break in his pocket, and the result will prove disagreeable, that day has arrived with Uriah. His usefulness is gone. Lennox and Addington can't afford any longer to pay $2,500 to a man to go to Ottawa to sleep. Don't talk to us Uriah, as though we were school children and had no sense to guide us. A man who can't see any faults in Foster is too blind to earn 25¢ a year in politics, let alone $2,500. No Uriah, step down and out and make room for a man who is ready to do something for the country and has the ear of the government.

Yours truly

Conservative.

Remarkable Testimony.

We, the undersigned, have been seriously troubled with valvular heart disease; have both had fainting spells upon the slightest extra exertion. Last April, when we both were unable to do any work of moment, we began using Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure, having no faith in it but hoping it might relieve. After taking six bottles we feel almost cured. We feel compelled to send this unsolicited testimonial, with the hope that others may be benefited as we have been. Gratefully yours,

J. L. BOYES,

MR. MILLER'S SIDE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NAPANEE EXPRESS.

Dear Sir—

The Beaver of October 16th, 1908, gives a summary of Mr. Wilson's speech in which he makes charges against the Immigration Agent of Lennox.

Mistakes were made as is likely to happen in any new business. In this case the mistakes were rectified as soon as known. Mr. Wilson could have known that the mistakes had been rectified just as easily as he knew they had been made and it shows his inability that he did not know it. At his meeting at Switzerville it was proven to him that his statement was untrue by those who knew the facts, yet he continues to make the same statement.

The government keeps back sufficient money due agents to cover any error which might be made and no money will be paid to the agent where the immigrant has not been properly placed and a certificate sent to the government from the farmer over his own signature that such immigrant had been so placed.

I have no money whatever in my possession to which I am not entitled.

Yours truly,

N. B. MILLER.

In last week's issue we questioned the correctness of Mr. Wilson's statement in reference to Mr. Miller's accounts re emigration. We have since heard Mr. Miller's side of the question and find, like all other conservative scandals that it vanishes into thin air when the proper explanation is forthcoming. In the cases referred to by Mr. Wilson whereby Mr. Miller received the usual commission for placing emigrants, other than farm labourers. Mr. Miller was at the time unaware that he was not entitled to pay for so doing, as he acted in response to a letter received from the department of emigration asking him to help those people in any way he could and see that places were found for them if possible even if they did not come as farm labourers. Mr. Miller did as requested and was certainly entitled to be paid for his trouble. In another of Mr. Wilson's statement that a certain family had not been placed on a farm, but were living in Napanee, those people spent two months on a farm and were placed there by Mr. Miller, and he holds both the employer's and employees signatures to this effect. Mr. Wilson made a great deal of these small matters, but passes over without a word the glaring scandals of the late conservative government, of which he was a strong supporter.

ODESSA.

On Saturday the sad news reached here of the death of John Cook, aged seventy-two years. Mr. Cook wasn't feeling very well and left here on October 7th for Cobourg, where his son, R. Cook, resides. Shortly after going there he was taken down with pneumonia and died on October 17th. He has been a resident of this place for twelve years and had made a host of friends. He is survived by two sons, William Cook, of Toronto, and Robert Cook, at Cobourg. One of Mr. Cook's last requests was that Rev. G. W. McColl, of Napanee, formerly Methodist minister of this place, should preach his funeral sermon, which was held at his son's house at Cobourg. Thence the remains were brought to Kingston, where the Free Masons, of which he was a member, took charge. Interment was at Cataraqui cemetery.

Mrs. Anson Storms left last week for Toronto where she will spend the winter with her son, E. H. Storms.

Mrs. W. R. Lee has left for Toronto, where she will spend the winter with her daughter.

Mrs. B. A. Booth and daughter, Mrs. J. H. Gardiner, have returned from New York, where they have been spending the past two weeks.

On Wednesday W. H. Clark, barber, of this place, sold out his business to Orange Babcock, who took possession immediately. Mr. Clark has left for Burritt's Rapids, where he will open up a barber shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith have returned from visiting friends at Chicago. Darius Babcock has bought the property opposite the town hall from A. P. S. Donaldson and has moved there. S. Delderfeld has moved in S. Silver's house on Main street.

Mrs. Damon Amey is no better. The three school teachers were away Thursday and Friday attending the teachers' convention at Napanee.

Home Dressmakers and Winter Wraps

WHEN the family purse is looking a trifle strait, the problem of the winter wrap is always doubly serious, and I have received a number of letters requesting help in its solution.

"What is the best investment for a semi-dressy wrap this season?" writes one correspondent.

"I have looked in all the shops for a reasonably priced coat," writes another, "and I can find nothing I would have under $30.00. I simply cannot pay this price, and as I am handy with both machine and needle, do you not think I could do better than this by making the coat at home?"

These two questions are worth answering in detail.

Certainly the best investment for a semi-dressy wrap, by which I think my correspondent means a wrap which can be worn over a number of one-piece or two-piece dresses to church, calling, receptions and perhaps even to the theatre or evening function over an evening gown, is something long, simple and inconspicuous. The separate wrap is, above all things, long and graceful. Simplicity of design is less apt to attract attention and prove that its wearer has but one good outdoor wrap, than the more pronounced patterns, loaded with trimming. And the inconspicuous coloring, such as black, a soft, reliable mode or tan, or a becoming subtle gray, is sure to combine well with almost any coloring of gowns.

Generally speaking, I think there is no wrap for such use that can compare with a semi-fitted long coat or cloak of black broadcloth so trimmed with fine silk braid and handsome buttons that it can be worn with semi-tailored gowns on the street, and by the addition of a striking lace collar will be transformed into an evening wrap.

Next to black broadcloth comes velvet, and this is particularly effective over silk or broadcloth suits. It is not so good, however, over coarse cloth mixtures. Silk wraps are never a good investment for the woman who must use one coat or cloak very hard during an entire season, and neither is silk a warm enough fabric for the average climate in this country.

So much for the first question. Now for the second.

The success of making an outer garment at home depends upon two things—the tailoring ability of the homemaker and the quality of fabric employed. The woman who imagines that she can cut the price of a thirty-dollar garment in two by making it at home is greatly mistaken. She will do wonderfully if she gets it for twenty dollars. This ten-dollar saving does not represent the retailer's profit by any means, because the retailer pays for the wholesaler's labor and "style."

Say you wish to duplicate a black broadcloth wrap trimmed with heavy silk braid and ornaments. Just what will it cost? For a coat in two-thirds or three-fourths length you will require at least four yards of broadcloth, 52 inches wide. If you are very tall and you use the full-length sleeve now in favor you may require even more, according to the pattern selected. This will cost $10.00. Your lining, in a quality of satin which will wear will cost you at least $5.00 more, for it does not pay to use silvery satin for lining, and tulle is little used in coat linings this year. Add to this at least $2.00 for findings, cords, braid, buttons, etc., and some outside trimming which is absolutely essential to the correct fit and set of the garment.

So you see, without your time and labor, you will invest at least $21.00, showing a saving of $2.00 on the investment. And to make this a real satisfactory saving you must exercise great care in the tailoring and finish of the garment.

Important points to be considered are the stitching and pressing of the wrap. Use heavy self-tone sewing silk for stitching, and be sure that your machine is perfectly adjusted. If the stitch pulls, or drops, or the tension is too tight or too loose, you will not have a tailored garment. Never use cotton thread in any part of the stitching. Unless you have plenty of strength, do not attempt to press the garment. A nearby tailor will do this for a trifle and get better results. If you do your own pressing, remember that seams must be pressed on both sides, on the upper side by covering the cloth with a plainly woven dampened fabric that will leave no mark of the weave on your broadcloth. That means that you must not employ a piece of honeycomb toweling, which will leave diamond-shaped markings all over the cloth.

A slender woman must always canvas her coat, and if the snug-fitting tailored look is to be secured, canvas must be used for any and all figures. Do not buy small and unimportant-looking buttons or braid ornaments for a large wrap. A couple of large, handsome buttons will give better results than a number of small, cheap-looking ones, and big, braid ornaments must be employed on the large cloaks now in vogue.

Sleeves are either very fancy or severely plain. The long, plain sleeve fits the arm like a glove and is fitted into the arm's eye with gussets instead of pleats. It also comes down over the hand almost to the knuckles. The fancy sleeves are cut in oddly shaped pieces, but show very little gathering or pleating. The fancy effect is secured by the application of braid.

Another feature of the season's wraps is the preponderance of short-waisted effects. Boleros are often used to secure this scheme, or a bolero effect is simulated by the application of braid.

A novelty in lining for wraps to be used for dressy wear is the white, pale gray or delicate mode lining which will not soil light frocks, run to the waist line only, and then the tails of the long coat or wrap are lined with self-tone. For instance, a black broadcloth wrap to be worn with light waists or frocks will be lined through the sleeves and waist sections with white satin and the tails with black satin.

Heaviness is the general attribute of the up-to-date wrap, as will be seen by referring to to-day's illustrations copied from some of the smartest wraps on exhibition at late fall openings.

Tempting Breakfast Dishes

THE average American family is fast following in the footsteps of foreign cousins and eating light breakfasts, and one hot dish is considered sufficient. The motherly mother and devoted wife may find one or two of the following dishes tempting. Generally speaking, something with a little salty flavor appeals to a man's appetite.

PINNAN HADDIE AND EGGS—Season with salt and cut into pieces.

Convenient Cooking Time-Table

Broiling.
Thin fish, 5 to 8 minutes.
Thick fish, 12 to 15 minutes.
Thin steak, 5 minutes.
Thick steak, 10 to 12 minutes.
Lamb chops, medium thickness, 8 minutes.
Young chickens, 20 minutes.

right breakfast, and one does not consider sufficient. The motherly mother and devoted wife may find one or two of the following dishes tempting. Generally speaking, something with a little salty flavor appeals to a man's appetite.

FINNAN HADDIE AND EGGS—Select a thick fish and cut into pieces large enough for single portions. Parboil the fish for a few minutes. Remove from the pan, dry with a cloth. Put the fish on a fine broiler, rub butter over it and broil until nicely browned. Lay on a hot platter, brush once more with butter, squeeze a little lemon juice over it and serve with a poached egg on each square of fish.

BAKED BREAKFAST DISH—In the bottom of a baking dish put a layer of cold, mashed potatoes left from a dinner. Sprinkle with bits of butter. Over this place a layer of finely chopped ham and then break several eggs over the top. Place in a moderately quick oven and bake until done. Grated cheese may be added on top of the eggs if cheese is liked. Many prefer it without the cheese for breakfast, and with the cheese for luncheon.

BACON IN POTATOES—Select large potatoes of even size and cut a small piece off one end so they will stand. When baked, remove the second end and scoop out part of the inside. Fill this cavity with chopped broiled bacon, making a little pyramid in each potato. Serve on hot platter and stick a sprig of parsley in each potato.

Macaroni and Cheese on Tomatoes Have ready a cupful of macaroni which has been boiled in salted water and cut up rather finely. This means a cupful after cooking, not before, and the pieces should be half an inch or more in length. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a skillet, and add one tablespoon of cornstarch and stir until well mixed. Add gradually half cup of sweet rich cream and cook two minutes. Add quarter teaspoon of salt, a dash of cayenne pepper, and quarter teaspoon of mustard. Into this sauce stir first your macaroni, then half pound of mild American cheese, grated. Stir and simmer gently until the cheese has melted, then turn the mixture out on triangles of toasted bread. Serve at once.

Bells and girdles are quite wide. Everything is done to shorten the waistline nowadays and this naturally requires a wide belt. These girdles are of different styles. They are folded, or gathered, fastening at one side under a fat rosette, and have long, fringed ends. Others are more like a sash, and after passing once around the waist are crossed and knotted loosely in the front or at the sides.

Very wide neck ruchings are a feature of the season, and the Pierrot neck ruff is seen everywhere.

Braid embroidery is largely employed on the tailored garments, and fine cord is being used in much the same way that soutache braiding was last year.

AS WE SOW SO SHALL WE REAP

One of Nature's Laws Which Was Never Known to Fail.

So they hanged Haman on the gallows he had prepared for Mordecai.—Esther vii. 10.

Thus in Shakespearean phrase was Haman thrust with his own pest. Or, in the more expressive and familiar language of the street, he was "fried in his own fat."

It is a most striking instance of what we call "poetic justice." But it is vastly more than that. It illustrates a fundamental truth of the universe. It declares that a man usually gets out of this world what he puts into it. Haman, choking on the gallows which he had prepared for another man, pictures forth that subtle law by which the whole creation makes response to human life and human action. Ours is indeed a wonderful universe; not so much with respect to the grandeur of its sunsets and the splendor of its stars as for the perfect balance of its forces. Haman's fate was in no sense cruel; it was justly earned.

That law whose application brought him to the gibbet erected for another guarantees all the fruits and flowers which make life worth living.

NATURE ALWAYS ANSWERS.

Every force works against some other force. Not a leaf moves but is some infinitely delicate measure the stars a billion miles away make response. Not a thistle-down floats across a summer meadow but the whole universe is sensitively sympathetic with its errand. Wherever a human hand is lifted in violence or love all beneficent forces are instantly aroused to repel the violence and reward the love. This is the court of world we live in. Action and reaction, as Newton discovered, are forever equal.

We commonly find what we are looking for, whether trophies or trouble. "I never saw any such sunsets as you paint," said a friend of Turner. "Don't you wish you could?" was the reply. It is that finer aesthetic sense which makes and proclaims the artist. The instinct of beauty is what Wordsworth carries with him to his observation of the world. And the stanzas which immortalize his name are merely a part of the answer made by nature to Wordsworth's gift of himself.

So with respect to our relations to each other. A Persian proverb says that if we would be sweet we must lie among the flowers. Not only would we be known by the company we keep; we would fain be made by the company we keep. Yet the fact is that it makes more than a holy fellowship to sweeten a sour heart.

What we get from other people is chiefly their answer to what we carry to them. For a man to discover evil in the world about him is not so great a discredit to the world as it is to himself. When I hear people sneer at

THE INTEGRITY OF MEN or the honor of women, I am chiefly sorry that such scoffers have given themselves away. It is always night to a blind man.

The world is a mirror reflecting the features we hold up to it. We can afford to be careless where we live in proportion as we are careful what we are. So also in the domain of business. Each man bears his own trade mark.

Merchant and professor walk with a different swing. The automobilist comes to wear the automobile face, yet it is cowardly for a man to blame his own deformities upon the spirit of the age in which he lives. The baneful effects of corrupt business upon a man are chiefly reactions of the man himself. The man who comes uptown spoiled is the man who went downtown ready for the spoiler. Trade will probably make us the sort of folks we are willing to be.

Nor can it be essentially different by and by. Who shall even guess all that immortality may mean? No description has even furnished a hint of what we shall be. Just one characteristic of the future is clear. Heaven and hell will be the answers to what we are. Not even God can put heaven into an unheavenly heart, and not all demons can prevail to keep a heavenly spirit out of heaven. Still, as we sow, we reap.

GEORGE CLARK PECK, D.D.

SURE SIGN OF SILLINESS.

"I was once accused," says Lieutenant-General Baden-Powell, "of mistrusting men with waxed moustaches. Well, so, to a certain extent, I do. It often means vanity, and sometimes drink. Certainly, the 'quiff' or lock of hair which some lads wear on their foreheads is a sure sign of silliness."

"Well, why don't you say you wish you were a man?" asked Mr. Potts, during the little discussion he was having with his spouse about some matters of domestic management. "Because I don't wish anything of the sort," she retorted. "I only wish you were one."

For street wear the one or two button glove in what is known as leather-colored kid. For evening wear and formal afternoon occasions, white kid gloves are worn. Black gloves are for mourning only.

Vacation Days and Hair Abuse

My desk is literally piled high with letters from all over the country written by girls telling me of the ravages which the summer sun has worked upon their hair. It is now too late to apply the never-failing ounce of prevention. The harm has been done, and one cure will not work for all.

The girl who has been to the seashore and saturated her hair with salt water every day, then dried it in the broiling sun, finds her tresses streaked and her scalp itchy and dry. Her case is generally the most deplorable of all.

Let her begin work at once, and she should not cease in her efforts until she has restored her hair to its natural gloss and health. If the hair is dark brown or black and has faded streaks through it from salt water and sun, I know of no safer cure than touching up these streaks with an herb lotion. This is not a dye, but is made of freshly gathered garden herbs. First shampoo the head, using a castile soap jelly, and then dry in the sunlight. Apply the herb tea lotion nightly with a tooth brush until the desired shade is acquired. Take two ounces of green tea and two ounces of freshly dried garden sage. Put them in an iron pot (no other kind of a pot will do) and pour over them three quarts of boiling hot water. Let it simmer on the back of the stove until reduced to one quart; remove from the fire and let it stand in the iron pot for twenty-four hours. Strain, bottle and apply as directed above.

Red hair which has become streaked can be restored by using henna paste. The hair must be divided into strands, and then covered with the paste thoroughly. The paste should be left on for two hours, then washed off several times in warm water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added, and the hair dried in the sun.

Henna Paste—One-quarter pound of powdered henna, 4 drachms of acetic acid, 4 drachms of white honey and 4 drachms of powdered rhubarb. Gloves should be worn while applying any of these coloring matters.

Now to restore the broken ends of hair. With this condition the hair is generally very brittle all over. First singe the hair, and to do this the hair must be divided into long strands and these strands twisted very tightly, then rub the hair from the bottom of the twist upward so that the broken ends will stick out. With a lighted taper run up and down the twisted strand, singeing off all broken ends. The next step is to massage the scalp with pure olive oil or yellow vaseline. Yes, I know this is disagreeable and makes the hair oily, but all medicine is not sugar-coated! But scalp massage is the secret of keeping the hair healthy and making it grow. It is not necessary to go to a beauty parlor—you can do it yourself each night in your cosy room, and if you persist, in a very short time you will find gratifying results.

Before dressing the hair and when taking it down, shake it out loosely, letting the air get to the scalp. Now dip the fingers in the oil—just the finger tips—place the finger tips at the forehead where the hair first appears, and gradually work them backward over the scalp in a circular motion. At each turn let the fingers press deeply enough to move the scalp and work the oil into the roots. Then, with the same circular motion, still moving the scalp, begin at the base of the neck and work forward over the head to the forehead. About fifteen minutes should be spent in this manner, every morning and night.

Then, too, there is the girl who has neglected her hair, and it has become thin and needs stimulating. For this is needed a good tonic which must be massaged into the scalp. A very excellent quinine tonic has been given in these columns many times, but any reader who has not seen it and desires it can have a copy if she will send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Red hair, which was so fashionable for many years, seems to have gone out of fashion, and the girl who has been trying to keep her hair in Titian hues will do well to let it get back to its natural color. Nothing but time will do this. This should be a lesson to the girls who never have dyed their hair but who "are just crazy to do it." Once you dye your hair you are a slave to the habit for years, for it must be kept up constantly. No dye is permanent, and nothing is quite so unsightly as a girl whose hair is half one color and half another.

White hair, once so unfashionable, has now become quite the rage, and many of our smartest women who have been appearing in raven locks for past years are now pure white. To keep white hair looking well it should be shampooed very often and rinsed in water to which has been added a little common washing blue. This takes away that yellow tinge so common and unsightly. Elderly women do not care to shampoo their heads very often, and a dry shampoo is sometimes very effective in keeping the hair pure white and fluffy in appearance. I will gladly send such a shampoo upon receipt of a stamped and self-addressed envelope. This dry shampoo is also very excellent for blondes.

Throw all your curling irons out of the window. This is honest advice. They have done more harm to the hair of the twentieth century woman than any instrument known in the dark ages. If nature did not give you wavy locks then help nature by using a simple curling fluid. Dampen the hair with the following fluid and put it up on kid curlers overnight. I do not advise the use of this fluid more than twice a week, however:

Gum tragacanth..... $\frac{1}{2}$ of an ounce
Rose Water.....1 pint
Oil of Almonds..... $\frac{1}{4}$ drachm
Crush the gum tragacanth fine, and pour it into the rose water. Stand in a warm place, stirring occasionally, till the gum swells and softens. Strain it twice, first through cheese cloth, then through coarse lawn; add the almond oil and bottle.

Self-Control a Factor of Good Form

SELF-CONTROL is first aid to social success. Occasionally, or more properly speaking rarely, you will meet a social leader who seems to fairly blaze her way by the aid of an ungovernable temper, a sharp tongue and a hauteur which is maddening to all who feel obliged to bow to her. But in such a case this leadership is due not to the inborn right to lead but to the possession of greater wealth than all her neighbors, political power held by her husband, charities dispensed with royal prodigality or other purely extraneous claims to leadership. She is despised and feared, and her supremacy is always menaced by a woman whose charms and social power come from within.

We all remember the story of a

So feels so hardly toward you, as you like to have friends among your own sex.

Perhaps the same woman will come another day and tell you that the Monday Morning Club has blackballed your name when proposed for membership. Now, do not, if you value your social future, tell the miserable tattler what you think of the club and its members individually. She will repeat all that you say—with flounces and fringes.

More than likely the club has not yet taken action on your application, and the caller is merely retelling idle rumors. But if it goes back to the club that you consider all its members social climbers and the club a gathering of would-be literary lights, the blackbailing will fall to your lot without fail.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON,

OCT. 25.

Lesson IV. The Joy of Forgiveness

Golden Text, Psa. 32. 1.

Verse 1. Blessed—The word thus translated in several passages if the Old Testament hardly implies the same degree of inward spiritual joy as the word in the New Testament beauty has come to mean to us. In Psa. 1. 1, "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly," for example, it refers primarily to the outward lot and condition of the righteous man. In our lesson text it signifies, perhaps, what our words "happy" and "fortunate" might mean if combined and used as one.

Transgression—Disobedience toward the laws of Jehovah.

Sin—Failure, shortcoming, or moral delinquency.

2. Iniquity—Moral perversity, that is, positive wickedness. We note the three different terms used to describe different aspects of sin or moral shortcoming. Corresponding with this threefold designation of sin there is a threefold description of forgiveness, this being spoken of as (a) forgiveness or pardon for the transgression of the divine command; (b) the covering from sight of the shortcoming or failure, that is, obliterating the record of "missing the mark"; and (c) the canceling of a debt or rather the withholding of a debit entry against the sinner by Jehovah who imputeth no iniquity.

No guile—But, on the contrary, perfect sincerity, which is set forth as the fundamental condition of forgiveness.

3, 4. Kept silence—David had sinned grievously, and so long as he refused to admit his fault he suffered the tortures of a guilty conscience which he describes by the phrase, my bones wasted away, even the solid framework of the body being affected and shaken by sin. The effect of bitter remorse for wrongdoing on physical health is similar to that of great sorrow or perpetual mental strain beyond the capacity of the human system to bear.

My moisture was changed—The vital sap and natural freshness of the body, as well as its solid framework, were consumed.

5. This verse describes, as it were, the pathway to the light.

Mine iniquity did I not hide—First of all, the truth must be recognized and faced. The four clauses of this verse describe the successive stages of the process of forgiveness.

6. For this—Because of this, because Jehovah is a gracious and forgiving God. In this and the next succeeding verses (6-10) the author generalizes, pointing out the folly of hardening one's heart against a God so gracious and so willing to receive those who repent and return unto him. He points out also the perpetual, unspeakable happiness of all who know Jehovah as their gracious heavenly Father.

In a time when thou mayest be found—Or, "in the time of finding out" sin.

7. Thou art my hiding place—This clause expresses in beautiful metaphor the grateful recognition to the possession of greater wealth than all her neighbors, political power held by her husband, charities dispensed with royal prodigality or other purely extraneous claims to leadership. She is despised and feared, and her supremacy is always menaced by a woman whose charms and social power come from within.

We all remember the story of a famous hostess who to relieve the embarrassment of a man guilty of breaking one of her finest cups, deliberately dropped the one she was using and acted as if the entire catastrophe was a mere trifle. It is hardly necessary to go to such lengths to reassure a guest, but the hostess who can forget her own loss and annoyance at the careless but entirely unintentional mishap to her property at the hand of a guest is the woman who has mastered this first aid to good form.

Not long ago at a reception a man, bestowing to relieve his hostess of a cup of tea she had just poured, spilled some of the amber-colored fluid on her delicately tinted satin house frock.

With a mechanical smile she accepted his abject apologies, but the woman present saw an ominous flush stealing up under her lace collar. When her daughter, a minute or so later, approached the tea table she hissed: "Never ask that man — here again. He's a boor."

The next day, when a skilful maid had removed all trace of the stain and the hostess had utterly forgotten her unnecessary comment on the awkward guest, the story was being repeated all through the drawing-rooms of their set by tattling women, the better appreciated because the awkward young man's engagement to the daughter of a famous financier had been announced in the morning papers. When his hostess of the day before heard this news and the fact that her sharp speech was being repeated all over town, she was in the depths of humiliation.

Bear in mind that the woman who comes to your home with a spiteful bit of gossip, some ugly remark which Mrs. So-and-So has made about you, will carry whatever you say in response straight to Mrs. So-and-So. Here is your chance to exert self-control—and give her nothing to carry. You can turn aside the bit of gossip by talking of something else, or even by saying that you are sorry Mrs. So-and-

She will repeat all that you say—with flounders and fringes.

More than likely the club has not yet taken action on your application, and the caller is merely retelling idle rumors. But if it goes back to the club that you consider all its members social climbers and the club a gathering of would-be literary lights, the blackbaling will fall to your lot without fail.

Just wait until the friend who proposed your name for membership notifies you of the result. Plenty of time then to express your opinion of the club which does not desire you as a member. The word you do not speak to-day cannot turn to sting you to-morrow.

If Mrs. Jones-Smith is sending out invitations for her daughter's wedding and you fail to get a card, though you went to school with that daughter, do not run over to Mrs. Blank-Dash's and tell her what you think of the ungrateful Jones-Smith set. Perhaps, after the bitter words are spoken, Mrs. Jones-Smith may call you by 'phone and tell you that the full quota of envelopes, did not accompany the invitations, and as you were one of the old family friends your invitation was held up a day. And, what is more, you must be sure to come over to the dinner given to Myra's wedding party.

Of course, Mrs. Jones-Smith should either have seen that the full complement of envelopes was delivered, or held up her invitations a day, but you were as hasty as Mrs. Jones-Smith and less excusable. You will now try to take back what you said to Mrs. Blank-Dash, but already she has gone down to market and repeated your sharp speech to her dearest friend, Mrs. Nathan Brown—and there you are, all in a stew for the lack of a little self-control.

Many a girl has lost her sweetheart because she flew at him hysterically for being late in calling to take her to a dance. She may miss a dance or two, but what is that compared to losing the respect, I was almost going to say the reverence of a good man?

Do try to exercise self-control, girls. It is a finer social asset than pink cheeks, French frocks and a motor car of your own.

Prudence Standish

ness of all who know Jehovah as their gracious heavenly Father.

In a time when thou mayest be found—Or, "in the time of finding out" sin.

7. Thou art my hiding place — This clause expresses in beautiful metaphor the grateful recognition of God's mercy and protection, as experienced by the repenting soul. In such matters it is natural that one should speak to God rather than of him; hence the use of the second person in these verses.

Compass me about—Not only is the writer guarded from danger in the secure hiding place which he has found, but here also as it were he is encircled with strains of music and songs of deliverance.

8. I will instruct thee—Jehovah himself becomes the speaker, replying to his servant's appeal, promising him instruction, counsel, and guidance.

With mine eyes upon thee—The word of divine counsel, together with the watchful care of Jehovah, insures to the traveler in the pathway of life security and safety.

9. Be ye not—The psalmist's exhortation begun in verse 6 is resumed. This verse points out specially the kindness and gentleness of Jehovah's guidance, who does not drive or compel, but rather wins men to himself by the compulsion of kindness and love.

Else they will not come near—Or, that they come not near.

10. Many sorrows shall be — God reserves his harsher methods of dealing for the wicked, with whom they are to serve as a chastisement for sin. The psalmist overlooks for the time being the fact that sorrows belong also to the life experience of the righteous, and the fact also that the finer traits of character, almost without exception, are the result, in part at least, of the refining influence of suffering heroically endured in the fear of God.

He that trusteth in Jehovah — Recognizes that even though sorrow and suffering may be his portion, still God's loving-kindness shall not forsake him, but shall compass him about, protecting him ever from any real harm or permanent injury.

11. Be glad in Jehovah, and rejoice, ye righteous—In verse 6 the psalmist invited all godly persons to engage in prayer. Now he summons all such as have, like himself, experienced the joy of sins forgiven, to join him in thanksgiving and praise, exhorting them even to shout for joy as he is prompted to do, by the gladness which at this moment fills his soul.

PAID IN ADVANCE.

A gentleman who was in the habit of dining daily at a certain restaurant, said to the Irish waiter, who attended him:

"Instead of tipping you every day Pat, I'll give you your tip in a lump sum at the end of the month."

"Would ye mind paying me in advance, sorr?" asked the waiter.

"Well, that's rather a strange request," remarked the gentleman.

"However, if you are in want of some money now, here's half-a-crown for you. But did you distrust me that you asked for payment now?"

"Oh, no, sorr," grinned Pat, pocketing the half-crown, "but Oi'm lavin' here to-morrow!"

The more a woman is set in her ways and opinion the more she resents being told of it.

GOLDEN CRESCENT BADGE

ADOPTED BY RICHARD COEUR DE LION.

After Crusades He Gave Turkish Symbol to Portsmouth as Coat of Arms.

It is related in the book of Judges that Gideon took from Bebah and Zalmunnah, kings of Midian, ornaments like the moon that were on their camels' necks. The Midianites were Ishmaelites and thus ancestors of the Turks, so it is not improbable that the symbol was derived from them and in use long before the taking of Constantinople in 1453. What lends some confirmation to this theory is the fact that Richard Coeur de Lion adopted this badge after he returned from the crusades, having assumed it in commemoration of the victory which he with his galleys, gained over the great Turkish dromon off Beirut in the year 1191. This, practically the first English naval victory, was celebrated both in song and history by the chroniclers of the period.

The Englishmen seem to have been greatly impressed with the enormous size of the Turkish ship, which must have been a very Dreadnought of her day. She was bigger, they say, than anything ever seen at sea, gaudily painted in yellow and green and carried no fewer than 1,500 men, among whom were seven emirs, and eighty chosen Turks, for the defence of Acre, and was laden with bows, arrows, Greek fire in jars and "200 most deadly serpents prepared for the destruction of Christians." Possibly these "serpents" were a species of fireworks or rocket.

SUNK HER AT LAST.

King Richard's galleys attacked her in vain for a long time, as their crews could not climb up her lofty sides despite the encouragement held out to them by their royal leader, who promised to crucify the last man to board her. Eventually several galleys drew off and, putting on full speed, rammed the big war vessel together in the same spot with such effect that she began to sink. The English were now able to get possession of her and to throw overboard and drown the remainder of her crew, according to the pleasant custom of the days of chivalry.

ROYAL CRESCENT BADGE.

Portsmouth at this time was, as now, one of the principal naval ports, and when in 1191 King Richard set sail from thence at the head of a fleet of 100 ships, he as a special honor bestowed the royal crescent badge upon the town as its coat of arms. "A crescent of gold in a shield azure with a blazing star or eight points or rays of silver between its horns" is the exact description of the device which to this day meets the eye everywhere in the municipality. Therefore, forward, too, the crescent and star became the official badge of the admiralty and was used as such up to the year 1545, when it was superseded by the anchor.

A GRATEFUL PEOPLE

Incident Which Show the Chinese in a New Light.

The Chinese are a highly appreciative people, who show their appreciation by the lavish bestowal of gifts. An American merchant tells, in the New York Sun, of his experiences with these generous givers. It is not only the wealthy merchant class, he says, who send presents to their white-skinned friends. The most lowly Chinese send gifts to the American and European friends whom they cherish. The merchant cites a little incident in support of his statement.

Some nineteen years ago, at the house of a Chinese friend in Shanghai, a very sumptuous house, a bright Chinese lad was delegated to wait on me, and a top-notch valet he was. I took a genuine liking to him, and praised him often. He received my praises in smiling silence, but he never forgot them.

On the Christmas following my return to America, among the many rich gifts which reached me from China was this boy's present—some tea, some joss-sticks, a jar of conserved ginger, a few little, inexpensive Chinese images.

Little boxes of this sort reached me every Christmas, although I did not see the boy again for ten years. Then the gifts began to grow richer, and I found that he had gone into business. Nine years ago I saw him in Shanghai, and he was prospering remarkably.

I've seen him every year since. He has fifty servants in his house—or I should say palace. He is a millionaire. He treats me as if I were a prince. The honors he heaps on me are overwhelming. I dare not protest; that would be the height of discourtesy. He never tells me why he does all these things for me. The Chinese are not outwardly emotional.

His Christmas gift for 1907 was a piece of the highest class of art in jade. It represents perhaps several years of work of a first-rate Chinese jade-carver.

Grateful, the Chinese? Why, once my wife befriended a Chinese dock coolie in Hongkong, who was being ill treated by a British soldier. Shortly afterward my wife was taken ill. Just one hour after she was taken to the hospital there came to her the most magnificent box of flowers I ever saw, sent to her by that dock laborer. The flowers represented, probably, all his own savings, besides a collection he had taken up among other dock coolies. How he knew my wife was taken to the hospital I never found out.

Oh, yes, the Chinese are grateful—grateful and kind, and fine, and big-hearted, if the world only knew it; but it doesn't.

AT MARIENBAD.

The Famous Resort is 100 Years Old—The King's Visits.

Marienbad is celebrating this year its centenary. Just 100 years ago the Abbot Pfgornr of Teß; the great monastery of these Bohemian uplands and the owner of all these forests and moorlands, was induced by the monk Reitenberger, his secretary, and by Dr. Nehr, his doctor, to erect a small shed over the spring of the Kreuzbrunnen, with a house capable of holding some ten beds and a few baths.

Up to then the spring had been flowing free in the moor, and it was only by springing from stone to stone that it could be reached. The attention of Dr. Nehr had been called to its wonderful properties. He saw the possibilities of the place, and thus laid the fortunes of the monastery. As some pious peasant had hung a rude picture of the holy Virgin on a tree above the spring, the abbot had the hamlet christened Marien-Bad, the bath of the Virgin Mary.

Now the place is famous the world over, writes the correspondent of the Queen, and some 30,000 persons seek the cure here every year, the majority in the hope that their too solid flesh may melt away. Above all, Marienbad is proud of the fact that King Edward has been coming here for eight years.

The King takes the cure very seriously. He walks down from his hotel, the Weimar, to the Kreuzbrunnen every morning at 8 o'clock, and alternately strolls about or sits under the trees while sipping his two glasses.

In previous years the crowd was very troublesome, because of its consuming eagerness to observe his every movement. But this year the spectacle seemed to pall after a few days and he moved about as others did. He was always accompanied by either Major-Gen. Sir Stanley Clarke or by Col. Ponsonby, or by both.

After his morning glasses the King, if the weather is fine, takes a short walk in the park and drives back to his hotel, where he breakfasts on the balcony of his sitting-room. The rest of the morning is devoted to state affairs; then comes luncheon, a simple meal of boiled fish, white meat or chicken and one of those delicious compotes, without which any meal seems incomplete here, and a glass of either beer or white wine.

Nearly every afternoon this year the King spent at the golf club, rotating up about half-past 3, for the links are high up on the moorland, where the air is splendid and the turf like velvet. He watched the various competitions, for two of which he gave the prizes himself, or else enjoyed a game of croquet on the lawn made expressly for him. Then he would ask two or three friends to take coffee with him, either in front of the pavilion or in the summer house by the croquet lawn, and later walk down home. Caesar, his wire-haired terrier, always accompanied his master.

The King's dinner, or what must would call a poor supper, is also a light meal, consisting of chicken or game and a compote, with one or two glasses of light Austrian wine. King Edward went several times to the pretty little theatre here, and often invited some friend to a seat in his box. Early to bed and early to rise is the rule at Marienbad, and no one observes it more carefully than the King himself.

F. C. Selous' Experience With a Lion in Africa.

Hunters and naturalists alike remark on the similarity of the lion and the domestic cat when they are preparing for the final rush on their prey. Mr. F. C. Selous, during a hunting trip in Africa, came near riding over a lion, an experience which he describes in "African Nature Notes and Reminiscences," and which also leads him to comment upon the great beast's likeness to other members of the cat tribe.

I once galloped almost on to a lion lying flat on the ground in grass only about a foot in height before I saw it. When I at last made it out, I was directly in front of, and probably less than twenty yards away from it.

As I pulled my horse in, this lion had its head pressed down on its outstretched paws, and its eyes were fixed on me. Had I ridden by it would certainly never have moved until I had got out of sight.

As I raised my rifle and looked down the barrel to align the sights upon its head, I saw the black tuft of hair at the end of its tail flicked lightly from side to side, and before paws, that had been stretched out straight beyond its nose, drawn slowly under its breast, without its head or body being perceptibly raised.

I knew the lion was on the very point of charging, but my horse kept breathing hard, and I could not get my sight steadily fixed below its eyes. Then, just as I saw the crouching beast's hind quarters moving gently from side to side, I fired, and luckily my bullet struck it just between the eyes, and, crashing into its brain, killed it instantly, so that it never moved, but still lay crouching on the ground, struck dead at the very last moment before starting on its charge.

Since that time I have on several occasions watched a cat when stalking a bird go through every movement made by that lion—the same involuntary twitching of just the end of the tail, the same drawing in of the fore paws beneath the chest, and then the wavy movement of the hips just before the final rush.

BRITISH POST-OFFICE.

Nearly Sixty-five Letters a Year Per Capita Received.

The British Postmaster-General's annual report just issued shows that an average of nearly sixty-five letters a year are received per capita of population in the British Isles. The number of postal packets of all sorts delivered was 4,972,072,300, or an average of 112.5 a person.

The limerick competitions and similar semi-lottery schemes promoted by newspapers have counted for a good deal in the past year's postal traffic. The number of postal orders issued was 125,264,000, an increase of 22½ per cent., principally due to the heavy demand for sixpenny orders which people bought to pay the entrance fee for these competitions.

People seem to be getting more forgetful, as the undeliverable packets showed an increase of over 11 per cent. They contained over $96,000 in cash and notes and $3,183,000 in checks, money orders and stamps. Entirely unaddressed were 442,957 packets.

about; but when I sit down to read I take off my glasses and bring the print up to within the natural focus of the eye. It seems to me that reading with the natural eye I read with a more intimate and a clearer understanding.

"So much for my reading without spectacles; and now here is the thing that is queer to me. If when I am reading thus, with my glasses off, somebody comes along to speak to me, why then to get a clear understanding of that question I must have on my spectacles.

"So I say, or I would say if it's happened at home where I know the people: 'Wait a minute, till I get on my spectacles'; and I would put them on and then say, 'Now go ahead,' and really, with my spectacles on, with my power of seeing at its best, with the sharpest definition of things in general to the eye, I get the clearest apprehension of things said to me.

"So in reading I do best with my glasses off; but in understanding things said to me, in listening, I do best with my glasses on. There is one modification to this, where there is no light, as in a dark room, where I can't see, I can understand equally well with or without glasses."

Yet no sooner is one started Than it tumbles down again. After all, it's not so funny. Did you ever see a laid That was all made up of castles Built of well-I-meant-to sand?

RINGS ARE PERENNIAL.

Rings, like the famous brook, "go on for ever." They are never out of fashion. The people of ancient Babylon wore rings. So did the Egyptians. Indeed, it is to the latter we owe the finest samples of antique seal-rings. The Persians, say the historians, did not wear rings of gold, as their religion forbade them having any of that metal about them, when engaged in their devotions. And as these were pretty frequent it would have been too troublesome to be constantly removing their rings. Later, the Greeks carried their fondness for rings to such a pitch, that with them "golden-fingered" meant the same as our modern phrase "rolling in wealth." At first the Romans wore iron rings, which were used as seals, and were useful rather than beautiful. Then they imitated the Greeks so closely that a fashionable man would wear more than a score of rings. Among the ancients, the ring was regarded as a symbol of authority. Thus, by bestowing upon Joseph his ring, Pharaoh invested him with kingly powers.

A resolution was passed by the Tipperary Board of Guardians at a recent meeting applying to the Board of Works for a loan of $2,500, being the first instalment of amount sanctioned for the building of a dispensary and medical residence at Golden.

A BOGUS OFFICER.

Spy Succeeded in Examining a British Submarine.

A singular story is being told in British naval circles at the present time.

A certain lieutenant was posted to command one of the new "C" submarines on acceptance by the Admiralty from the contractors. The little vessel was to make the passage round to Portsmouth, shepherded by a cruiser.

The lieutenant duly came on board in uniform. The crew were all present, although the submarine was not to start until the following day. The officer made a most searching inspection of the vessel, parenthetically mentioning that this was the first time he had been on board one of the new type, and asking many questions. He then went ashore again, leaving word that he would be on board in the morning before the craft was due to sail.

A few hours later another naval officer came on board and in reply to polite enquiries stated that he was lieutenant—and had come to take command of the submarine. It speedily became apparent that a hoax had been played. The newcomer had difficulty in establishing his bona fides. Therefore the first "officer" was evidently an impostor who had come aboard skillfully disguised as a lieutenant to pry into the secrets of the new submarine.

The matter, it is said, has been diligently hushed up. But in naval circles it is held that the abnormal precautions taken on the recent occasion of the launch of a new submarine at Chatham lend veracity to the rumor.

DO THE LITTLE KINDNESSES

How often do we think of the value of little kindnesses? Just consider for a moment your ideal of what a woman should be, and you will most likely find that she is not a woman who does wonderful things but one who does the graceful little deeds of tactful kindness. She is the woman who says the timely word of encouragement that dispels despair; who always has an eye to the comfort of those about her; whose quiet and unexpected ministrations are like balm to those bruised by the world; and who only asks to make happiness wherever she can her whole life through. It is a big point for all of us to consider. So many people are apt to devote all their thought to the big things of life while they overlook the little kindnesses. We rush blindly ahead over the stony road, which, by a little thought, might be made smooth and easy.

JAPANESE CADETS.

Their Military School Exercises Include Hand-to-Hand Conflicts.

"In the Japanese military school," writes Gen. Kuropatkin in McClure's, "where I saw a Spartan system of education, the exercises of the cadets with pikes, rifles and broadswords were not approached by anything of the kind that I had witnessed in Europe—it was fighting of the fiercest character."

"At the end of the struggle there was a hand to hand combat, which lasted until the visitors stood triumphant over the bodies of the vanquished and tore off their masks."

"In these exercises, which were very severe, the cadets struck one another fiercely and with wild cries; but the moment a prearranged signal was given, or the fight came to an end, the combatants drew themselves up in a line and their faces assumed an expression of wooden composure."

"In all the public schools prominence was given to military exercises, and the scholars took part in them with enthusiasm. Even in their walks they practised running, flanking and sudden, unexpected attacks."

"The history of Japan was everywhere made a means of strengthening the pupils' patriotism and their belief in Japan's invincibility. Particular stress was laid upon the country's successful wars, the heroes of them extolled, and the children were taught that none of Japan's military enterprises had failed."

"TUNE WITH A RIVER IN IT."

Music of Bagpipes Has Great Influence Upon Scottish Folk.

It is a strangely powerful influence that the bagpipes have upon Scottish folk. Now-a-days that influence may largely be ascribed to association. The tunes were composed at the time of epoch-making events, at the time of the setting of landmarks in Scottish history. Numerous pibrochs, for example, were outpourings in music during seasons of joy or sorrow, and, when played again, recall old memories. But apart from that there is something in the very sound of the pipes which stirs the Highland blood, and even a Saxon with a touch of imagination and with a little in him of that poetic strain which forms part of the Celtic character, finds it easy, once he overcomes his prejudice, to allow that there is music in the pipes, and to let that music move him.

It is an old idea, no doubt arising from this peculiarly strong influence of the pipes on the Scots, that that music is a language itself. There is also the wonderful descriptive power of the sound of the bagpipes to account for that idea. As Neil Munro so finely puts it in that splendid little story "The Lost Pibroch"—"The tune with the river in it, the fast river and the courageous, that kens not stop nor tarry, that runs round rock and over fall with a good humor, yet no mood for anything but the way before it."

PARIS CITY OF SORROWS

EACH STREET OF THE GAY CITY HAS ITS TRAGEDY.

The French Capital Possesses Memories Unequaled by Any Other City.

With true Gallic irony, Paris is called the city of pleasure. Rather, call it a city of sorrow. Siege, civil war, enemies without, and rebels within, have consecrated it with many solemn memories. Each street has its tragedy, romance is written across every face, and the result is a fascination not possessed by any other city in the world. There rises from these toiling streets not only the cries of the market, but the hum of countless forgotten generations.

The City of the smoky fray;
A prodded ox, it drags and moans;
Its Morrow no man's child. Its Day
A vulture's morsel beaked to bones.

The "Marche des Oiseaux," which attracts the curious on Sunday from dawn to sunset, occupies the Marche de la Cite and the Quai des Fleurs, running along the north bank of the Ile de la Cite from the Pont Notre Dame to the Pont au Change. This little island contains Notre Dame, the Hotel Dieu and the Palais de Justice, with the Sainte Chapelle. It is not only the centre of Paris, it is the birth-place of a city which for centuries has been the pivot of the world. And then there is the weekly flower market held at the Madeleine on the Rue Royale.

FLOWERS FOR QUEEN.

Many legends are told of this quaint and haunted quarter. When Marie Antoinette awaited the scaffold in the wretched dungeon, which until quite recently was a chapel of expiation, it was to the Marche de la Cite that the conicerger of the jail came day by day. Her name, Madame Richard, deserves to live in our memory. Her merciful errand was the purchase of flowers, which she gave to the dethroned Queen. Roses, lilies and violets cast a fragrance over the last days of the most miserable of women. Had Louis XVII. the slightest imagination, Madame Richard would have received a coronet when the Bourbon lily took its place again on the white flag of France.

SAID COWS KNELT.

Many of the stories have an element of grim fantasy. Between the market and the metropolitan cathedral used to stand the church of the Parisian butchers. This is the reason why it received such patronage. One day, in the early Renaissance, a student who had been driven mad by his classical studies rushed up to the altar and proclaimed the worship of Jupiter. He was speedily tried and executed, after which a religious procession went through the street leading to the church praying that the blasphemy might be forgiven. The priests passed two cows driven to the slaughter house. As the host was raised the animals knelt in adoration. The miracle gave the church the distinctive name, St. Pierre aux Boeuffs.

A Swiss couple have recently married after a courtship of forty-five years. They became engaged in their teens, but the young man vowed to make $50,000 before asking the young lady to marry him. While he was making this pile in America nearly 3,000 love letters passed.

In India, with its teeming and poverty-stricken myriads, parents often find it no easy task to marry off their daughters, for a wife has to be bought by the suitor. Widows are cheap; and when a father finds his daughter getting on in years, he makes a widow of her by the simple process of marrying her to a bunch of flowers. When the flowers are dead, she is technically a widow, and can be offered at a bargain price.

SPIES IN GREAT HOTELS

CLEVER DETECTIVES WATCH FOR CROOKS.

Many Smart Scoundrels Who Make Big Hotels Happy Hunting Grounds.

I dare say it would shock many a guest at our great hotels to be told that he is in a network of spies as complete and cunning as any devised by the Russian secret police; and that even the affable gentleman who passes him the salt or the waiter who brings him his soup may be a detective in disguise.

Not, continued the London hotel-manager who made this startling statement to the writer, that the knowledge need take the edge off his appetite or cause him a moment's uneasiness, if he has a clear conscience and has no designs on the spoons. The spies will soon sum him up, and won't trouble him at all; but there are probably some among his fellow-guests on whom they have a very watchful eye.

The fact is, and it may as well be known, that almost every large hotel in London (and elsewhere) has its staff of spies, whose presence is indispensable in the interests of the hotel and its guests. The chief of the staff is a very wide-awake and experienced detective who has an intimate knowledge of the "crooks" who make big hotels their happy hunting ground—cardsharps, thieves, and swindling gentry of all kinds, who are about the cleverest scoundrels in the world.

ARE "CALLED AWAY."

These men, as I dare say you know, are almost invariably well-dressed, gentlemanly fellows, with all the appearance of men of wealth and with considerable skill in ingratiating themselves with their fellow-guests—and potential victims. They have to be very clever, however, to blind the hotel-detective, who, if he doesn't know them at sight, knows the type well enough and keeps a very keen eye on their movements.

Usually a tap on the shoulder and a word or two whispered in the ear are enough for these rascals. They may have just announced in the billiard-room that they intend to stay at least a month, somehow they are unexpectedly "called away," and within an hour the hotel knows them no more. These are, of course, the crooks who are immediately spotted by the detective, and who have short shrift; on those whom he suspects but is not sure of he keeps the eye of a lynx, and at the first suspicious sign off they go too—quite quietly, with no fuss, but as forcefully as if they had been shot out.

And it is not only the professional crooks, who hail from the Continent and America, that the detective is on the watch for. He is responsible for the morals of everyone in the hotel, from the guest who wanders innocently into a room not his own, and wishes to take away a souvenir of his absurd blunder, to the waiters, chambermaids, and cellar-men, who have mixed ideas as to the rights of property. They are all on his list, and they must be very cute to hoodwink him.

Oh, no, he doesn't work alone; he works through a score or more pairs of eyes as well as his own. He has a staff of assistants among the employees of the hotel, of every class

NEW ARMY FOR AUSTRALIA.

Five Classes May be Called Into the Field.

Australia is to have a new defence law. Her present volunteer system produced only 20,000 volunteers out of 80,000 adults capable of bearing arms. Under the new act 82,000 men will be secured for only $500,000 more than it is now paying.

In war time five classes may be called under the colors. First, unmarried men between 18 and 35; next, unmarried men between 35 and 45; then married men respectively between the foregoing ages, while the fifth class includes all men between 45 and 60.

The act prescribes that all the male inhabitants of the Commonwealth, unless specially exempted who have resided for six months in Australia are liable to be trained from the age of twelve to eighteen as cadets, and from eighteen to twenty-six in the defence force. Prescribed peace training for cadets is fifty two attendances of one hour each, and four whole days' attendance yearly. For the defence force in the first three years eighteen days' attendance, and in the last five years seven days yearly.

For the naval forces the artillery and engineers in the first five years 28 days yearly; in the last three years seven days yearly.

The act does not apply to those over eighteen at the time of its coming into force. At the termination of the annual training members will be classified as efficient or non-efficient. If the latter, they will be required to attend an additional training yearly until they are efficient.

A penalty of $500 will be inflicted on any employer either preventing an employee from serving or reducing his wages or dismissing him in consequence of his military service. Any one failing to comply with the act will be ineligible for employment in the Commonwealth service, and will be disqualified from voting or receiving an old-age pension.

WARSHIPS TRAVEL SLOWLY.

The reason of this is not want of power to go faster, but a question of fuel. The difference in consumption of fuel between, say, twenty knots' and ten knots' speed is extraordinary. This is due to the greatly increased resistance of the water at high speeds. For instance, a torpedo-boat can steam ten knots an hour with only 110 horse-power, but to do double that speed, she must use 1,130 horsepower. In the case of a first-class cruiser it takes five times as much power to drive her at twenty as it does at ten knots. And an Atlantic liner will require at least seven times as much power for the higher as for the lower speed. In the matter of coal it is found that covering sixteen knots in an hour a vessel will consume ten times as much as covering eight knots. Consequently, a warship doing a long voyage at her best speed would need five or six times as much coal as she would burn on the same voyage at a lower speed.

A novel surgical operation has just been performed on a leopard in Paris. The animal recently, while eating his dinner, also bit his tail; gangrene set in, and it became necessary to amputate a portion of the tail to save his life. This leopard was lassoed, thrown on his back, a piece of soft wood was given him to gnaw, and while held by ten men the veterinary proceeded with the removal of a portion of the tail and cauterized the wound. The animal roared considerably, but the operation was declared successful.

Under a new Norwegian railway regulation, when husband and wife are travelling together the wife need only pay half-price. The idea may simply be to encourage family life, on the theory that a Norwegian who normally leaves his wife at home will be tempted to take her along at reduced rates. It will, of course, be necessary, when taking a husband-and-wife ticket, to display one's marriage certificate and make an affidavit that the lady is one's wife, in order to prevent collusion at the ticket office between perfect strangers.

DOLL FRIGHTENED THIEVES

Silver Doll Moving by Clockwork. Made Robbers Nervous.

Northumberland House, near Charing Cross, was in former days the town house of the dukes of Northumberland. In the time of the first duke some burglars broke into the mansion, hoping to make a great haul of plate, says Home Notes. They managed to penetrate the strong room, where among other treasures was an antique silver doll which moved by clockwork. The thieves accidentally touched the mechanism, whereupon the doll began to walk about, and it so terrified the men that they made off with all possible speed without taking away a single thing.

That doll is now at Sion House, Isleworth, where the present Duchess of Northumberland gives the most delightful garden parties during the London season.

to the waiters, chambermaids, and cellar-men, who have mixed ideas as to the rights of property. They are all on his list, and they must be very cute to hoodwink him.

Oh, no, he doesn't work alone; he works through a score or more pairs of eyes as well as his own. He has a staff of assistants among the employees of the hotel, of every class from waiters to porters; and so secret is the system that these auxiliary detectives are unknown as such to their fellows and even to one another.

EYES EVERYWHERE.

You can imagine the difficulty of being dishonest under such conditions of secrecy and mystery; for there are eyes literally everywhere, and some of them are almost sure to be those of a spy, whose duty it is to report the most trifling deviation from honesty.

In some hotels the system is carried to such an extent that the most harmless-looking guests, and even their visitors, are shadowed in their goings and comings until their perfect respectability is placed beyond doubt; the corridors are patrolled by stealthy feet at night to ensure that there is no night-walking with felonious intent; and I have even heard that at one hotel there is a detective hall-porter, with a skill in portrait-sketching, who keeps a record of the features of every new guest for future possible reference.

A BOMB FOR A BRIDE.

Infernal Machine Sent as a Wedding Present.

Two men have been arrested on suspicion of having sent an infernal machine to a young woman in Aberdeen, Scotland, who was about to be married. The intention had evidently been that the "gift" should be opened in the presence of both the bride and bridegroom, but fortunately the machine, although complete in its mechanism, had got out of order, and did not work.

It is said that the Glasgow police have traced the sender as belonging to Glasgow. Inquiries show that the girl had kept company with a man living in Glasgow. She returned to Aberdeen, from which place she is said to have come, and was about to be married there to another man. While at Aberdeen she received a box, which she thought contained a wedding present. When it was opened, however, it was found to contain a revolver, and a sufficient quantity of gelatine to destroy a house and all its occupants. There was an ingenious contrivance whereby, when the box was opened, the revolver would be discharged into the gelatine. The parcel was despatched from Birmingham; the revolver was fully cocked, and had the parcel been opened by other than expert hands the result would have been disastrous.

Another report says that the two men in custody are married men, and that the theory of a rejected lover may be dropped.

FRIVOLOUS MADRID.

Spanish Capital a Spendthrift Town and Devoted to Gossip.

The note of Madrid is frivolity. It is a spendthrift town. Nowhere do so many people of modest means keep carriages, or at least hire them. The automobile has supplied a new outlet to an old passion, says the London Times.

Nowhere do so many people who cannot afford to have a motor driver, or to buy regular supplies of petrol (which, to be sure, is both dear and bad in Spain), keep an automobile. Therefore they turn out now and again for a short run at high speed to their own glorification and the danger of the public. As for that public, it lives in the streets and in a perpetual state of talk.

What London or Paris news comes through to Madrid, except telegrams, is mostly gossip. Important matters appear to interest the Madrilenos little. What did interest him was when a young person appeared on horseback in Hyde Park in a Director costume. Feather headed and light heeled, the Madrilenos, on the other hand, good natured and easy to live with.

Madrid women dress well, even very well, and the charm of the Spanish woman is never denied. Modern Madrid is sometimes supposed to be modelled on modern Paris, but the writer's view is that there is nothing Parisian about Madrid, except the skin.

Paris works desperately hard, is intensely interested in serious things and producers, thinkers and men of intellectual and scientific eminence. Madrid certainly does not work hard, does not appear to be much interested in anything but frivolity, and few of her greatest men, even statesmen, are much more than names.

Reserves In Peril

Foster Made an Attempt to Lay Hands on the Reserve Fund of the Foresters to Enable Him to Carry on His Gambling Transactions in Northwest Land-- Had Reached the Limit of the Company's Borrowing Powers.

DEMANDED SURPLUS OF I.O.F.

Sent a Hold-Up Letter Asking That the "Tap Be Turned on" and That He Must Have the Surplus of the I. O. F.

The more light that is thrown upon the history and record of Hon. Geo. E. Foster, the more damnable does the case against him appear. It transpires now that he sought to lay violent hands on the reserve fund of the Foresters.

Not content with placing in peril immense sums, forming part of the trust funds of the Foresters, he had the audacity and the criminal intent of engaging the reserve fund in his gambling operations. Here is the letter he wrote to Dr. Oronhyatekha:

INVITATION TO CRIME.

"My Dear Doctor,—As you know the Foresters have $500,000 of their money in the Northwest land deal. On the security of this we have borrowed all the money we can from the banks. We have also put into this deal as much of the I.O.F. current account as can be arranged. We require still more money. Could we not have part of the reserve fund for this purpose."

Yours Sincerely,

(Signed) GEO. E. FOSTER.

Receiving no reply to this, the following still more urgent letter of importunity was sent:

DEMAND PRESSED.

"Dear Doctor,—I have not received a reply to my former letter. Let me assure you that the machinery of the Union Trust Company needs oil. Please turn on the tap. We need the surplus of the I.O.F."

Yours Sincerely,

(Signed) GEO. E. FOSTER.

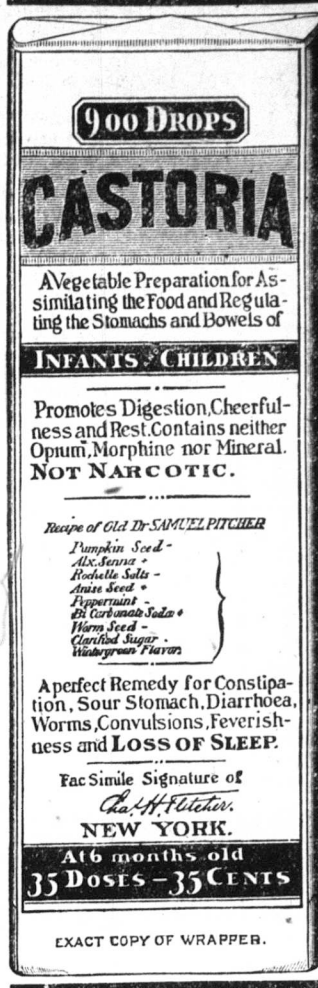

Mr. Foster has made the bases of his defence throughout, that the money he speculated with was the money of the Union Trust Company, and not the money of the Foresters. His contention has been that when the Foresters invested their money in stock of the Union Trust Company, it ceased to be Foresters' money and became the money of the Union Trust Company.

Speaking in the House on April 10, 1897, Mr. Foster said on this point: "Therefore what I said at first I repeat again, that it is absolutely a misrepresentation to represent me as investing the trust funds of the Foresters so far as respects the amount of money they put into the stock of the Union Trust Company."

LIAR BY HIS OWN MOUTH.

In the letter first quoted Foster says: "As you know the Foresters have $500,000 of their money in the Northwest land deal."

This is a clear admission that the money with which he was gambling in Northwest lands "was the money of the Foresters," although he told the House that the money of the

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. When Dr. Reid of Grenville tells what he calls the story of the Arctic scandal, he forgets to add that after Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave him a committee he failed to prove his case, and the committee upon which were a number of Conservative members, brought in a report against him.

The more the light is turned on the better insight one has into the doings of Tory members in the House. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and members of his Government welcome the fullest investigation into every department of the administration.

Statistics.

In all probability the first administrative act of the first regular government was to number its fighting men and to ascertain as nearly as was possible what amount of taxation could be levied on the rest of the community. As human society grew more highly organized there can be no doubt that a very considerable body of official statistics must have come into existence. We know that such was the case in Greece, Rome and Egypt, but it was not until within the last two or three centuries that systematic use of the information available began for purposes of investigation rather than mere administration.

Businesslike England.

The production of correspondence between Foster and Dr. Oronhyatekha exposes the perfidy of the former and his utter lack of any sense of moral responsibility. "Could we not have part of the reserve fund for this purpose?"

If a part of the reserve, why not the whole of it? Foster asks that the reserves which had been laid aside for a rainy day, for the extra protection of the widows and orphans of the Foresters, should be raided to enable him to carry his load of land speculation in the West, in which, according to his own statement, he had already plunged $500,000 of the Foresters' money.

TURN ON THE TAP.

Days went by and there being no response, Foster wrote a characteristic letter, practically demanding the surplus of the Foresters. His gambling operations had reached such a pass that the money already secured from the Foresters had been swallowed up in hazardous speculations, and even the Union Trust Company had been denuded of funds, and the limit had been borrowed from the banks.

What was the position now? Foster had the Foresters so deeply involved that to protect themselves they had to go still deeper. "The Union Trust Company machinery needs oil," says Foster. "Turn on the tap," says this reckless speculator with trust funds. "We need the surplus of the I.O.F.," says this insatiable gambler in Western lands. Supposing the I.O.F. had declined this frantic appeal from the frenzied financier? What would have happened? The Foresters would have lost every dollar already embarked in their unlawful enterprises.

This is the same Mr. Foster who basis his defence upon the plea that he had nothing to do with the trust funds of the Foresters. Had this correspondence never seen the light of day some may have been deceived. It has been brought to light and furnishes the convincing proof that Geo. E. Foster should be retired to oblivion.

Tories Only Tell the People One Side of the Story—Slanders Repeated on the Public Platform Have Been Withdrawn and Apologized For in House of Commons.

SLANDERS THAT WERE BURIED

Foster, Reid, Borden and Others Keep From the People Very Important Episodes Which Would Discredit Them if Generally Known.

How few people who listen to Mr. Foster and Mr. Ames, know that these gentlemen made somewhat similar statements in the House, and were immediately confronted by the gentlemen whose names they were indiscreet enough to mention, and the result was instant retraction and ample apology.

Mr. Foster said that Mr. Turfiff, then commissioner of Dominion Lands, now an M. P., had retired to a dark and secluded room, having an iron-bound door, after locking the door he opened the timber tenders in secret.

Mr. Turfiff at once gave Mr. Foster the flat contradiction, said there was no dark room in the building, no room having an iron-bound door that he never opened the tenders in secret, but always in public, and he concluded by describing Mr. Foster's statement as a malicious lie, and demanded that it be taken back. Foster promptly took it back. Foster does not tell this part of the story.

Mr. Ames stated in the House that Mr. Sifton was interested in certain lands under discussion. Mr. Sifton denied it and compelled Mr. Ames to take back what he had said word for word. Mr. Ames does not tell this part of the story.

While Hon. Mr. Aylesworth was denouncing Mr. Foster for taking rake-off and commission from the Foresters' money, while manager of the Union Trust Company, Foster presented a pitiable spectacle to the House, tears rolled down his cheeks, and the plea he made was evidence of the craven character of the man who had been found out. Mr. Foster does not tell this part of the story.

When Mr. Turfiff presented himself time and again before the Public Accounts Committee to be examined, Mr. Ames and Mr. Foster both declined to examine him on put him in the witness box. The only witness who could throw light on the subject. These gentlemen don't tell this part of the story.

While the timber investigation was in progress, and after it became evident that everything was open and above board, Mr. Ames moved to stop the investigation, and this he did in the absence of Mr. E. M. Macdonald from the committee room. Mr. Ames does not tell this part of the story.

When Mr. Turfiff told Mr. Foster that the only time he came near being gold-bricked it was when being asked to take stock in a wildcat mining scheme of which Mr. Foster was president. Mr. Foster smiled a sickly smile. This part of the records of the House he says nothing about.

When member after member on the Tory side of the House answered to his name as Mr. Turfiff read from Tory orders in council where they had received timber limits free, even Mr. Foster repeated his sickly smile when his name was mentioned. This part of the story he finds it convenient to forget.

Mr. Foster, the session before the last, notified the Government that he would criticize the financial policy of the Government. Shortly afterwards the Government voted a pen-

Last year settlers brought in with them from the United States duty free $9,000,000 of settlers' effects. They also brought in $10,000,000 of dutiable effects upon which they paid into the treasury the sum of $2,000,000 in cash. This is double the amount spent by the Government on immigration last year.

As you know "the Foresters have $500,000 of their money in the Northwest land deal," said Mr. Foster to Dr. Oronhyatekha, when asking for more money to bolster up his gambling operations.

Climatic Changes.

There is plenty of evidence of the very best sort which goes to prove that not only Europe and North America, but the lands situated within the arctic circle, must have enjoyed a tropical climate. The numerous fossil remains found in those regions are those of plants and animals which, according to the present state of our knowledge, must have lived under conditions now found only in the equatorial belt. Nothing is clearer than the fact that the polar cold is steadily gaining on the temperate and tropical zones and that eventually the land will be all ice fields.

Donald Knew.

Margaret, aged ten, was a beginner in history. "Mamma," she asked, "what does 'behead' mean?"

"To cut off a man's head, dear." There was a moment of silent study, then another question.

"What does 'defeat' mean, mamma?" Little Donald, aged four, was interested.

"I know, mamma," was his logical conclusion. "'Defeat' means to cut a man's feet off."—Delineator.

THE GOVERNMENT AND ZAM-BUK.

Survey out from Fort William Takes this Wonderful Balm.

Zam-Buk the favorite household balm is now adopted as "The Doctor" by leading parties in surveying various parts of the Dominion lands.

Mr. Henry Hall writing from Fort William says:—"Having proved how beneficial Zam-Buk is in cases of cuts, skin injuries and diseases, I determined to keep a supply handy. Being engaged to go on a survey I thought it would be a most useful thing to take along. I obtained a supply in Fort William, and very well it was I did so. I may say that pretty nearly every day it was called into requisition by one or other of the party for cuts, bruises, burns, or some injury or other. It is wonderful how quickly Zam-Buk takes the soreness out of cuts, burns, bruises and injuries, and on our survey it earned golden opinions from all who had occasion to try it. I have found it very fine for skin disease, and I can strongly recommend it as a household balm."

Mr. Lascelles Scott one of the leading Government analysts says:—"I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk which my opinion is excellently adapted for skin injuries and diseases."

Zam-Buk cures cuts, scalds, burns, bruises, eczema, scalp sores, ringworm, ulcers, abscess, chapped places, cold sores, blood poisoning, chronic abscesses, etc. As an embrocation it relieves rheumatism, neuralgia, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50 cents a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25. Send 1 cent stamp for dainty sample box.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better. In fact, the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

On Verge of Ruin

Foster Had Plunged to Such a Reckless Extent in Gambling Operations in Land to Make His Friends Rich and Give Himself a Rake-off That the Union Trust Was on the Brink of Bankruptcy.

FRANTIC APPEALS FOR MONEY

When In London He Wrote That Hundreds of Thousands Were Coming Due and Union Trust Had Not Sufficient Money.

That Geo. E. Foster by his reckless speculations and illegal dealing with the money of the Foresters, while he was manager of the Union Trust Co., brought the latter institution to the verge of bankruptcy, has been made public by the letters written by Foster to Dr. Oronhyatekha.

To such straits had the Union Trust Co. been brought by Foster, that he actually had to admit that the current account of the Foresters had been absorbed, all the money possible had been borrowed from the banks, and $500,000 of trust funds of the Foresters unlawfully invested in lands, hung trembling on the verge of total loss.

Every available channel had been exhausted through which money could be obtained, but he could not borrow another dollar.

Here was a crisis brought about by Foster himself, the logical result of too much gambling in speculative ventures, and according to his own admission the Union Trust Co. was within a measurable distance of ruin, and the funds of the Foresters were in imminent peril to the extent of over a million of dollars, for had the crash come, the I. O. F. world have been terribly involved.

A vote for a Conservative means a vote for Foster, a man who came within a hair of bringing a catastrophe upon the Foresters, and all through transactions made contrary to the law governing the investment of trust funds.

As a borrower, Foster shines. He borrowed $62,000,000 for Canada when he was in office, and the Liberal Government has been paying the interest on that money ever since.

Mr. Foster has ceased all connection with the Union Trust Co., or the Foresters, his occupancy of the position of manager brought the affairs to such a pass that his connection with the company became intolerable and he was removed. His connection with the wildest mining and other schemes is now too well known, and the services of such a man should never be employed by Canada in any capacity.

Mr. Turfitt, M.P., once told Mr. Foster in the House that the only time he came near being gold-brick was when asked to put money into a wildcat with which Foster was connected.

When it was proved over his own signature that he took commissions on the side, Foster forfeited any right to the confidence of the people, and upon Oct. 26 one of the men excluded from the Dominion Parliament for good and sufficient cause will be Geo. E. Foster.

Tory Papers Are Asking Who Owns the 250,000 Acres Now Advertised to be Sold in Saskatchewan---They Say Owners Fear Restitution and Are Scrambling to Get From Under.

LAND OWNED BY TORY M.P.

E. B. Osler, Tory Member For West Toronto, Got This Land For Nothing From a Tory Government In 1890.

Any port in a storm, is supposed to be good reasoning, and any argument in a political dilemma is good enough for the Conservatives. The Toronto Mail and Empire, and other Conservative papers are giving great prominence to the following:

"Considerable curiosity has been aroused in the west as to the owners of the tract of 250,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to be sold by auction next week. Why is the company so suddenly auctioning off these 250,000 acres of land? In 1907, the lands were advertised in the company's price list at $10, $12 and $15 per acre. May of this year they were reduced to $8, $10 and $13. Now the company is willing to take any old price. It is plain enough they fear the Conservatives will be returned to power. If they are there will be an investigation, there will be restitution. Notice the dates of auction, just a week before the elections."

Tune For Tune.

Frederick the Great made generous presents to all musicians except flute players. He played the flute remarkably well himself. A famous flutist once asked permission to play to the king, hoping that Frederick would show his appreciation of his skill by some valuable gift. Frederick listened attentively while he played a difficult piece. "You play very well," he said, "and I will give you a proof of my satisfaction."

So saying he left the room. The musician waited, guessing at the probable nature of the proof. Presently the king returned with his own flute and played the same piece. Then he bade his visitor "Good day," saying, "I have had the pleasure of hearing you, and it was only fair that you should hear me."

Beyond His Aid.

A woman who had a telephone in her apartment called up the telephone company and asked that the service be discontinued. The man who took her message tried to be exceedingly polite.

"We are sorry to lose you," he said. "Are you dissatisfied with anything?"

"I am," said the woman emphatically.

"I am very sorry," said the man. "Perhaps we can help you. What is it you do not like?"

"Single blessedness," said the woman. "I am going to be married tomorrow."

"Ah," said the polite clerk, "you are past our aid. Goodby."

HE IS NOW ALONE.

Mr. B. L. Borden started out very bravely with Mr. Hazen, Mr. Roblin, Mr. Fowler and Mr. Hanna. He is now left with Hanna, all the others have thought it wise to return to their respective provinces. Mr. Hazen quickly realized that he was out of his element and left early. Mr. Roblin was driven out under fire, and Mr. Fowler arrived at an appreciation of the fact that bar-room stories of a profane kind were not welcomed by the people of Ontario. Mr. Hanna remains on to explain away his insult to British immigrants, which he finds difficulty in doing. Mr. Borden's four companions a rocket, brilliant at the start, but finishing with the drop of the stick, in darkness.

Foster has received a certificate of character from Mr. Borden. Foster has also received a certificate of character from The Toronto News, Montreal Star, Halifax Herald, Ottawa Journal, Tory papers. Also from the Union Trust Co. and the Foresters, but they don't agree. Oh, no.

WHO OWNS THE LAND?

This land was given by a Conservative Government in 1890 to E. B. Osler, Conservative M.P. for West Toronto, for his company the Qu'Appelle and Long Lake Railway Co. Therefore, if there is to be any restitution, a Tory must give back what he got from a Tory Government. The Conservatives are so careless in their statements that the boomerang hits them, and in this case it hits them hard. "Turn on the light," as The Toronto Mail says.

VERY SIMPLE AND CHILDISH.

The Toronto News, a paper which once denounced Foster as utterly unfit for public life in consequence of his illegal dealings with trust funds of the Foresters, now supports that person as a proper representative for North Toronto. This same paper is publishing every day a little story entitled "the people versus the grafters." Every transaction with the Government is noted down and "probable values" placed as the sum total of loss to the people. This total loss is carried forward every day, and by election day will amount to quite a sum. This is a sample of campaigning carried on by this paper which is making itself so foolish by swallowing itself every day. The Toronto News, however, has no influence in the country.

Dreadful Prospect

Can Any Person Contemplate the Fearful Consequences of Placing the Tories in Power?
---Some of Them.

When one contemplates that a Conservative vote means placing the affairs of the country in the hands of Foster, Fowler, Bennett, Lefurgey, Pope, Roblin and Bowser, the outlook becomes menacing. Think of such men in control of public affairs! Foster negotiating a loan for millions and taking a rake-off and commission on the side. Bennett controlling the public Works Department. Lefurgey administering the Interior Department, assisted by Fowler and Pope. Imagine the letters that would be written to "My Dear Lefurgey" "to keep it mum" except from Bennett and Borden. Can any one conceive the dreadful consequences of a foreign treaty negotiated by Fowler, or a Colonial Conference at which Geo. Taylor represented Canada. Such an eventuality is too awful to think about, yet this might be the position of affairs if the Conservatives were returned to power.

Do the people expect that high standards of political morality will be maintained by men of the stripe of Geo. E. Foster who would have used the reserve funds of the Foresters for gambling operations in land?

A Precaution.

"Every man is the architect of his own fortune," quoted the wise guy.

"Yes, but he wants to keep solid with the building inspectors," added the simple mug.

Reason Enough.

founding demand that he be given a portion of the reserve fund.

The people must remember that a vote for a Conservative is a vote for a man who would do the like of this.

After vainly imploring the Dr. to "turn on the tap," that the Union Trust Co. wanted oil, and suggesting the criminal act of encroaching on the reserves, he wrote still more urgent letters.

Foster's many speculations in which he had taken the load of responsibility off the shoulders of his Conservative friends and placed them on the back of the Union Trust Co., all of which was to be met by money of the Foresters, finally brought the Union Trust Co. to a point where its liabilities were so great that there was difficulty in meeting them. This is proved by a letter written by Mr. Foster when at the Adelphi Hotel in London, to Dr. Oronhyatekha. In this letter he admitted the critical condition of the Union Trust Co., how necessary it was to have instant relief, and how he had urged upon the Supreme Chief Secretary MacGillivray the using of the I. O. F. reserves.

Upon his return to Canada Foster's importunities continued. He wrote a series of letters to the Supreme Chief Ranger, urging most persistently the need for more money to meet payments which he said "were coming due every day." He even went so far as to give a list of payments, made necessary by his land gambling operations, running into the hundreds of thousands. These payments the Union Trust Co., under Foster's management, was unable to meet. He had gone beyond his depth, and acknow-

TRAIN FOR BUSINESS

Most men train their brains and almost entirely neglect their bodies. They do not seem to realize that keenness of judgment and clearness of thought depend as much on the body as on the brain itself. Any man can prove this to his own satisfaction by attempting to decide a weighty business problem while suffering with an acute attack of indigestion or a violent spell of biliousness.

The amount of work that the brain can do depends much on the healthfulness of liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in tablet form. They act directly on liver, bowels, kidneys and skin—and enable these vital organs to rid the system of all impurities. Thus the blood will be kept pure and rich, the brain active, digestion sound, and life made pleasant.

"Fruit-a-tives" are now put up in two sizes—the new 25c box as well as the regular 50c size. If your dealer does not carry them, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

English Voters Will Show Their Disapproval of Mr. Hanna's Insults When They Vote on October 26th.

Mr. Hanna is going about the country insulting the English immigrants. He says that they are filling the jails and asylums and costing the province of Ontario $1,200,000 a year to maintain them.

The statistics prove Mr. Hanna to be making false statements. His insults in this connection will not be overlooked by the English voters on Oct. 26th.

Mr. Hanna also makes false statements about Mr. Sifton, statements he would not dare make in his presence. Mr. Foster and Mr. Ames both were compelled by Mr. Sifton to apologize to him on the floor of the House for saying much less. What a sorry figure Mr. Hanna would present should Mr. Sifton suddenly confront him in a meeting. Mr. Sifton's name was not connected in the slightest form with any of the matters referred to in the House, or brought before the public accounts committee, and it remains for an obscure person to make such foundationless charges against the integrity of an eminent ex-Minister of the Crown.

Mr. Hanna will find that the friends of Mr. Sifton, and the thousands of English voters will resent his insults in a manner not to be mistaken on Oct. 26th.

Think of Canada having a Cabinet composed of Foster, Fowler, Pope, Lefurgey, Bennett and Roblin of Manitoba. It only requires the man Bowser who illustrated his speech with blasphemous stories. The people of Canada would never consent to be governed by men of this stripe.

Turn on the light and let us see how many other things were done by leading men of the Conservative party which unfits them to hold any public position of trust.

Geo. E. Foster wanted to get his hands on the "reserves" of the Forsters to bolster up his speculations in northwest lands.

Can high standards in political life be maintained by men with a public record such as that possessed by Geo. E. Foster?

Boomerang For Tories

If Any of the Following Tory Scandals Are True Then the Guilty Men in Each Case Are Tories.

The men who were members of the Quebec Bridge Co. were scoundrels, say the Tories. One of them is a Conservative candidate in this election.

The Robins Irrigation Co. was a swindle, say the Tories. One of its strongest supporters at Medicine Hat is a Conservative candidate in this election.

The Moncton land deal was a scandal, say the Tories. The man who made the valuation of the land is a Conservative candidate in this election.

The Halifax land deal was a scandal, say the Tories. The man who valued the land is one of the most prominent Conservatives in the city of Halifax.

The owners of 250,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands are selling them by auction before the elections fearing restitution will be demanded. "Who are the owners?" shouts the Tory press in chorus. The reply is, E. B. Osler, Tory M.P. for West Toronto, who got them for nothing from a Conservative Government in 1890.

ANSWER IS OBVIOUS.

It is admitted upon every side that the Laurier Government will be returned to power. The Conservatives have now adopted the changed attitude of declaring that the majority of Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be reduced, a few days ago it was to be wiped out altogether.

There are two points only to be considered. The one is, shall Sir Wilfrid Laurier be returned to power to continue his good work for the progress and advancement of the country?

The other is: Has Sir Wilfrid Laurier given to the people such an administration as to entitle him to a renewed term of power?

The answer in both cases seems to be a very decided "Yes!"

The Liberals have cut down the postal rates one-third, and increased the pay of postmasters, and came out at the end of the year with a surplus of $1,100,000. Let Laurier go on with his work.

"Turn on the tap, we need the surplus of the I.O.F.," said Geo. E. Foster. Who needed it? Why Foster, Fowler, Lefurgey, Bennett and Pope; also Roblin, Montague and Campbell.

Mr. Hazen, Premier of New Brunswick is the last of the provincial supporters carried around the country by Mr. Borden, to discredit himself. This person, who quickly dropped out of the Ontario campaign, returned to his native province, and in a barefaced attempt to injure Hon. Dr. Pugsley in the eyes of the people, reads what purports to be an affidavit from a man named Mayes, to the effect that in 1907 when Minister of Public Works, Dr. Pugsley asked Mayes for money.

Immediately Dr. Pugsley's attention was called to the matter he characterized Mayes "as an informal, miserable scoundrel and a miserable liar." This estimate of Mayes is endorsed by Mayes himself, for he writes a letter denying the whole story although he had previously sworn to it in an affidavit. Mayes writes:

He was surprised at how the sores healed. "I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted over six years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicine the symptoms would break out again, running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scalding, itching of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and no at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of my disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish."

sworn to it in an affidavit. Mayes writes:

St. John, N.B., Oct. 13, 1908.

"Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works:

"Dear Sir,—I notice by this evening's papers that you comment on my affidavit stating that you obtained $2,000 from me on 16 October, 1907. The date should be 16 October, 1905, and the error is entirely a typographical one which I regret, and have taken the proper steps to have corrected.

"I remain, yours etc., (Signed) "G. S. Mayes.

The date makes all the difference in the world. In 1907 Dr. Pugsley was a Minister of the Crown, and in 1905 he was acting as solicitor for Mayes, who owed him large sums of money. A transaction which was quite innocent in 1905, might have been a questionable one in 1907.

It appears that this man Mayes had a contract from the Government for dredging, and tried in vain to sell to the Department over which Dr. Pugsley presides, a dredge for $150,000 which the superintendent of dredges said was only worth $101,000. Failing to perpetrate this fraud on the Government, Mayes signed a lying affidavit which he now explains away as a typographical error.

It transpires further that this rascal Mayes offered to Dr. Pugsley that he would add $20,000 to the price of the dredge, which amount he would give back to Dr. Pugsley to use for campaign purposes. At this dishonorable and criminal suggestion, Dr. Pugsley ordered Mayes out of his office. Had he ordered him to be kicked off the premises, he would have done nothing that would not have met with universal approval.

To destroy the reputation appears to be a favorite game of Conservatives. The press at this very time is full of the famous Hepburn case at East Elgin, and now comes this dastardly piece of business at St. John.

A man like Mayes, who made the iniquitous suggestion to Dr. Pugsley, that they agree together and rob the country of a large sum of money, can easily be classed among those persons who have no sense of moral responsibility, and he may be dismissed with the character given him by Dr. Pugsley, as a miserable scoundrel, and a liar; but for Mr. Hazen, the Premier of a province, to read before a public meeting an affidavit calculated, if true, to ruin forever a prominent man, there is nothing left but contempt, because it was open to Mr. Hazen to verify or disprove the truth of the affidavit.

The very last thing Mr. Hazen desired to do was to disprove the affidavit. He would rather have known it to be true, and this probably explains why he hastened to read it at a public meeting without making any enquiries as to its truth.

The Conservative party has sunk very low. Slanders they have circulated in abundance and now, as the time to vote draws near, and they are conscious of their lack of policy, and their utter failure to convince the people that wrong-doing has taken place, they resort to the use of false affidavits. Such despicable methods will meet with their proper reward at the polls on October 26th. Let the Conservatives continue their work a little longer, and Laurier will literally sweep the country. Turn on the light.

WEIGHT OF A HORSE.

Bad Guesses Made by Men Unskilled in Horsemanship.

Many people, even among those who frequently make use of horses, have little idea what an ordinary horse weighs and would have much difficulty to guess whether a given animal standing before their eyes weighed 500 or 1,500 pounds. Yet they would have no such difficulty with a man and probably be able to guess, especially if they were good Yankees, within ten or twenty pounds of his weight. The governments of Europe have long been purchasing and weighing horses for the military service and transferring them from carriage or draft employment to the various branches of cavalry and artillery. The animals are ordinarily assigned according to weight. The French military authorities find that an ordinary light carriage or riding horse, such as in the United States would be called a "good little buggy horse," weighs from 300 to 400 kilograms—say from 800 to 900 pounds. Such horses as these are assigned to the light cavalry corps. The next grade above, which in civil life passes as a "coupe horse," or carriage horse of medium weight, ranges in weight up to 480 kilograms, about 1,050 pounds. This horse goes to help mount the cavalry of the line.

Next come the fashionable "coach horses" of persons of luxury, which weigh from 500 to 580 kilograms, or from 1,000 to nearly 1,300 pounds. These horses go to serve the purpose of drill for the cavalry belonging to the reserve military forces. Above these there are still two grades of heavy horses. The first are those used for ordinary draft purposes and are commonly found drawing the omnibuses of Paris where such vehicles are still in use. These weigh from 1,100 to 1,500 pounds. The heaviest horses are the Clydesdales and Percherons, which are oxen in size and strength and which weigh from 600 to 800 and sometimes even up to 900 kilograms—that is, from 1,300 up to nearly 2,000 pounds. None of these Percherons of the heaviest weight are used in the military service, but some of the lighter ones are employed for draft and artillery purposes.

AIDED HER RIVAL.

Romance of a London Society Leader and a Diamond Necklace.

The jewelers of Bond street could if they liked tell many an amazing story. There is no need to dilate on the fascination which scintillating gems exercise upon the feminine mind. That fascination is a fact and may serve to explain a mortal enmity which existed recently and probably still exists between two well known society leaders. To one of them a highly placed admirer mentioned his intention to purchase a diamond necklace. Knowing that the lady possessed more than a superficial knowledge of the value of stones, he begged her to select for him what he required. The price he was prepared to give was £1,500. The lady jumped to the conclusion that such a request could have but one meaning—viz, that she herself was to be the eventual recipient of the gift. She thereupon visited the jeweler's shop and inspected his stock, but at the price she was empowered to give saw nothing that particularly took her fancy. A fascinating piece of workmanship, however, did at-

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.

"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 119 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas has lived for 119 years. For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson.

Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude.

His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 119 years ago.

Born before the United States were formed.

Saw 22 presidents elected.

Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.

Veteran of four wars.

Shod a horse when 99 years old.

Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.

Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.

Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal troubles.

IN speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 119 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Pe-ru-na was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh I tried Pe-ru-na for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes: "I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock,

A letter dated July 3, 1906, written for Mr. Brock by his wife, Sarah J. Brock, states:

"Last winter I had just gotten up out of a spell of sickness, when I commenced taking Peruna. I think it improved my health very much."

In a postscript, Mrs. Brock adds: "He receives a great many letters inquiring about what Peruna will do. I do not answer them all, as I think they can get a bottle and try it."

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt, the power of to conquer all female diseases. Mrs. Frank Emsley, Lindsay, Ontario, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "When I wrote to you some time ago, I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the feminine organs and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. "A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. "I most heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all women who suffer with female troubles."

FLY FOGS IN INDIA.

A Plague That at Times Makes Life Unbearable in Calcutta.

One of the evils of Calcutta is the plague of green flies, from which the whole city suffers at certain times in the year. The happy hunting time of these minute insects is during the late autumn and early winter. They are a serious nuisance both in and out of doors. They wing their way through all the open doors into the houses and into every room, making life unbearable.

Like most insects, the little green flies have a great affection for the flame. On occasion the inhabitants have found it necessary to put out all the gaslights, even at a public dinner, and to take their meals practically in deep gloom, illuminated only by flickering candles.

Naturally it is not at all pleasant to go on eating with dense clouds of insects swarming overhead or, roasted to death, falling about one in pattering showers.

They seem to spring into existence from nowhere. Perhaps it is almost dusk when the lights of the street lamps are becoming visible. Then suddenly the air, which a moment before was quite clear, is full of myriads of green flies, drifting in misty patches and obscuring the street lamps.

Often the number of insects which have been scorched to death is so great that little heaps of them collect inside the lamps, while bucket loads have to be swept up from the roads next morning.—London Answers.

Printer's Error---Mr. McAvity Tells the Story of the Attempt to Blackmail Hon. Wm. Pugs- ley Which Met With Failure--- Mayes Wanted to Rob the Government.

MAYES' TALE FLATLY DENIED

He Threatened to Work Injury Unless the Department Purchased His Dredge at an Excessive Price.

The latest roorback from St. John N. B., has exploded. This was a despicable attempt to politically ruin Hon. Wm. Pugsley, and with the following affidavit there remains nothing but contempt for Mr. Hazen who circulated the slander without making any inquiries as to the truth of Mayes' statement.

An attempt is made to put the blame on a printer, but this is too shallow. The motive was apparent, and the blow will fall upon the Conservatives and be the cause of a greater majority than ever for Hon. Dr. Pugsley who is a candidate in St. John.

Mr. George McAvity has made an affidavit which entirely confirms the statement of Mr. Pugsley that the real cause of the Mayes affidavit was the refusal of the Minister of Works to pay an excessive price for Mayes' dredging plant.

AFFIDAVIT BY M'AVITY.

Mr. McAvity in his affidavit in reply to Mr. Mayes says: "That in the summer of 1905 Mayes requested me to become interested with him in the dredging business and I consented to do so. I made several trips to Ottawa in connection with the obtaining of the contracts and spent a great deal of time in connection therewith, both before and after the first contract was awarded, being in almost daily consultation with Mr. Mayes until some few months ago, when his conduct became unbearable.

"His demands were so unreasonable, and as I then thought and said to Mr. Baxter so much in the nature of blackmail, that I decided not to have any further business transactions with him. My business connection with Mr. Mayes is now the subject of an action at law and will be fully dealt with in the courts.

"That it is absolutely untrue that I have ever had any conversation with Mr. Pugsley, as alleged in Mr. Mayes' declaration, and I never knew of any payment to Mr. Pugsley in connection with dredging matters, and I verily believe that no such payment has ever been made.

"That the contract given to Mr. Mayes, and referred to in his said declaration, was awarded by the then Minister, the Hon. Mr. Hyman, to Mr. Mayes, he being the lowest tenderer.

$20,000 RAKE-OFF.

"That in the month of September last I met Mr. J. B. M. Baxter, who acted for Mr. Mayes in connection with the dredging contract, and is Mr. Mayes' close personal friend and adviser. Mr. Baxter then and there proposed to me that if the Government would buy Mr. Mayes' dredge at a price which I thought was about $100,000, there would be a rebate for political purposes of $20,000. I replied to Mr. Baxter that I was through with Mr. Mayes and I would have no further transactions with him.

"That early in the present month of October Mr. F. W. Holt, civil engineer, called upon me and stated that he came with a view of effecting a settlement of matters between Mr. Mayes and myself, and that Mr. Mayes was making threats of what he would do to hurt the Government demands of that nature usually had a price, and asked him to ascertain what Mr. Mayes' demands really were. A day or two later Mr. Holt again called upon me and stated that if the Government would purchase the dredge at $153,400 Mr. Mayes would withdraw all suits, return all checks and notes and photographs thereof, and give a letter to take no further action, otherwise he would publish a statement of a damaging nature to the Government, and would take the platform himself.

"I then informed Mr. Holt that I was through with Mr. Mayes, that I was prepared to fight all suits, that there was nothing to conceal, as it was a legitimate business transaction on my part, and Mr. Mayes would have to take his own course."

ANOTHER LIE NAILED.

A few days ago The Toronto Mail made the statement on the front page that Hon. Clifford Sifton had dealings with the Government through the International Fur Signal Company, and that he owned $50,000 of stock in the company. This having been brought to his attention he replies: "I have no stock or any interest whatever in the International Marine Signal Company." Thus another Mail and Empire campaign lie is nailed. Turn on the light, the more light turned on the more the truth appears.

Let Laurier finish his work, it looks good to us.

HE ATE THE SOAP.

Garland Would Have Swallowed It if It Had Killed Him.

Augustus H. Garland, who was attorney general under President Cleveland, was very fond of practical jokes and during his term of service in the senate frequently turned the laugh on his colleagues. Senators Voorhees and Vest, with whom he was very friendly, finally determined to turn the tables. Mr. Garland had a habit, like Voorhees, of munching candy, and Vest and Voorhees made it up between them to take advantage of his fondness for sweets to play their trick. They had some tempting looking chocolate caramels prepared, with the interior filled with brown soap. These they took to the senate chamber, and Voorhees placed them on his desk. The lid being off, when Mr. Garland sauntered down the aisle he noticed them at once.

"What have you there, Dan?" he inquired.

Voorhees looked up carelessly from his writing and responded: "Caramels. Help yourself."

Garland needed no second invitation and, picking up two or three, placed one in his mouth. Steadily he chewed away, his face betraying no sign of the conflict within him. This alarmed Voorhees, who went to Vest's desk and said:

"He's eating them, Vest! What shall we do? The stuff will kill him sure!"

Senator Vest replied that it could do no more than make him sick. Garland swallowed the stuff, although he was foaming at the mouth from the soap-suds. He related the incident afterward with great gusto and said he would have swallowed it if it had killed him.

If the Tories would tell the facts about their alleged scandals, and allow the people to judge, there would be no anxiety as to the verdict.

OR, THE GIRL IN BLUE

CHAPTER XXIX.

At five o'clock that same afternoon I alighted from a hansom before the Langham Hotel, and presenting my card at the bureau, inquired for Miss Anson. The clerk looked at me rather curiously. I thought, glanced at the card, and entering the telephone-box, spoke some words into the instrument.

I was shown into a small room on the first floor, where I waited until a gentlemanly, middle-aged, fair-headed man entered, with my card in his hand.

"Good afternoon," he said, greeting me rather stiffly. "Her Highness is at present out driving. Is there anything I can do? I am her secretary."

"Her Highness?" I echoed, with a smile. "There must be some mistake. I have called to see Miss Mabel Anson."

He regarded me with some surprise.

"Are you, then, unaware that Anson is the name adopted by Her Highness to preserve her incognito?" he asked, glancing at me in quick suspicion. "Are you not aware of her real rank and station?"

"No," I cried, in blank amazement. "This is indeed a revelation to me! I have known Miss Anson intimately during the past six years. What is her true rank?"

"The lady whom you know as Miss Anson is Her Imperial Highness the Archduchess Marie Elizabeth Mabel, third daughter of His Majesty the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria."

"Mabel! The daughter of an Emperor?" I gasped involuntarily. "Impossible!"

He shrugged his shoulders. "He was a foreigner, although he spoke English well—an Austrian most probably."

"You are surprised," he laughed. "Many people have also been surprised, as the Archduchess, living in England nearly her whole life, has frequently been taken for an Englishwoman."

"I can't believe it!" I cried. "Surely there must be some mistake!"

I remembered those days of long ago when we had wandered together in Kensington Gardens. How charming and ingenuous she was; how sweet and unaffected by worldly vanities, how trustful was that look when she gazed into my eyes! Her air was never that of the daughter of the reigning House of Hapsburg-Lorraine. She had possessed all the enchantment of ideal grace without the dignity of rank, and it seemed incredible that she was actually a princess whose home was the most brilliant Court of Europe.

"I can quite understand your surprise," observed the secretary. "But what is the nature of your business with Her Highness?"

I cried, taking her small gloved hand. "I have loved you from the first moment that we met at the Colonel's, long ago—you remember that night?"

"I shall never forget it," she faltered in that low tone as of old, which was as sweetest music to my ears.

"And you remember that evening when I dined with you at The Boltons?" I said. "Incomprehensible though it may seem, I began a new life from that night, and for six whole years have existed in a state of utter unconsciousness of all the past. Will you consider me insane if I tell you that I have no knowledge whatever of meeting you after that night, and only knew of our engagement by discovering this letter among my private papers a couple of months ago?" and I drew her letter from my pocket.

"Your words sound most remarkable," she said, deeply interested. "Relate the whole of the facts to me. But first come along to my sitting-room. We may be interrupted here."

And she led the way to the end of the corridor, where we entered an elegant little salon, one of the handsome suite of rooms she occupied.

She drew forth a chair for me, and allowing a middle-aged gentleman—her lady-in-waiting, I presume—to take her hat and gloves, we once more found ourselves alone.

How exquisitely beautiful she was! Yet her royal birth, alas! placed her beyond my reach. All my hopes and aspirations had been in an instant crushed by the knowledge of her rank. I could only now relate to her the truth, and seek her forgiveness for what had seemed a cruel injustice.

I took her unresisting hand, and told her how long ago I had loved her, not daring to expose to her the great secret of my heart. If we had mutually decided upon marriage, and I had deliberately deserted her, it was, I declared, because of that remarkable unconsciousness which had blotted out all knowledge of my life previous to that last night when we had dined together, and I had accompanied the man Hickman to his lodgings.

"But tell me all," she urged, "so that I can understand and judge accordingly."

And then, beginning at the beginning, I recounted the whole of the amazing facts, just as I have narrated them to the reader in these foregoing chapters.

I think the telling occupied most part of an hour; but she sat there, her lovely eyes fixed upon me, her mouth half open, held dumb and motionless by the strange story I unfolded. Once or twice she gave vent to ejaculations of surprise, and I saw that only by dint of supreme effort did she succeed in preserving

WAS SO RUN DOWN
LIFE NOT WORTH LIVING

A Few Bottles of Peruna

Restored Me to Health

Mrs. John Henderson, 2 Overdale Ave., Montreal, Can., writes:

"I was much distressed with neuralgia and was so run down that life was not worth living. I tried a great many remedies, but all to no effect."

"I met a friend of mine, and told her of my ailment. She advised me to try her remedy, Peruna."

"Although I had no faith in Peruna, I took her advice, and am pleased to state that the neuralgia has entirely left me, and have gained so in health that I feel just like my old self again."

"I am enjoying the best of health."

should return to Vienna. This I did, accompanied by Mrs. Anson, and leaving the woman Grainger in charge of the household as usual. I wrote to the young Prince from Vienna, but received no reply, and when I returned a fortnight later searched for him in vain. He had mysteriously disappeared. A few days before, in my dreams, I had seen the fatal raven, the evil omen of my House and feared the worst.

"Then the man who was murdered at The Boltons on that night was none other than Prince Alexander, the heir to the throne of Bulgaria?" I cried.

"Without a doubt," she answered. "What you have just told me makes it all plain. You took from the dead man's pocket a small gold pencil-case, and you will remember that I recognized it as one that I had given him. It was that fact which caused me to suspect you."

"Suspect me? Did you believe me guilty of murder?"

"I did not then know that murder had been committed. All that was known was that the heir to the thens. I have not seen her since." I then related how for the past month I had been closely watching her, and repeated the conversation I had overheard at Hull between her and her visitors on the previous night.

"The woman, after leaving my service, has, it seems, somehow become an agent of the Bulgarian Government. She knows the truth," she said decisively. "We must obtain it from her."

"It was a woman who struck the young Prince down!" I exclaimed quickly. "Of that I am certain."

My love reflected for a brief instant.

"Perhaps," she said. "The woman was jealous of the attention he paid me."

GOLD GUNS MELTED.

Costly Weapons of an Indian Prince
Converted Into Bullion.

I learn with profound regret (writes a Westminster Gazette correspondent) that H. H., the Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda has melted down and converted into bullion the celebrated gold and silver cannon of Baroda. I say "with profound regret" for sentimental reasons.

Of these costly but useless toys, the silver guns were the inspiration of the former Gaekwar. In order to "go one better" than his predecessor, the late Gaekwar (he who was charged in 1875 with the attempted murder of Col. Phayre) had the gold guns cast and mounted at a cost, it is said, of £100,000. They reposed in the state armory and were the wonder and admiration of all visitors to the capital.

On State occasions, however—such as coronations, marriages, etc.—the gold and silver guns were always brought out to take part in the procession. They were "horsed" by teams of magnificent white oxen, which were fittingly caparisoned, i.e., in cloth of gold for the gold guns and cloth of silver for the silver guns.

The native gunners and drivers regarded their charges as sacred and the writer has seen offerings of rice, fruit, fowls, etc., deposited upon the muzzles of these weapons in the Baroda barracks. Such offerings have now "had their day and ceased to be." For the present Maharajah-Baekwar happens to be a man of both practical politics and practised economy, and he would not maintain the "guns" for merely sentimental reason.

rank, and it seemed incredible that she was actually a princess whose home was the most brilliant Court of Europe.

"I can quite understand your surprise," observed the secretary "But what is the nature of your business with Her Highness?"

"It is a purely private nature."

He glanced at the card.

"The Archduchess does not receive callers," he answered coldly.

"But at least you will give her my name, and tell her that I have something of urgent importance to communicate to her," I cried eagerly.

He hesitated. "If you are, as you allege, an old friend, I will place your card before her," he said at last, with some hesitation. "You may leave your address, and if Her Highness consents to receive you I will communicate with you."

"No," I answered in desperation; "I will remain and await her return."

"That is impossible," he responded. "She has many engagements, and certainly cannot receive you to-day."

I recollected that the letter I had found at Denbury made it plain that we had parted abruptly. If this man gave her my card without any word, it was more than likely that she would refuse to see me.

Therefore I entered into argument with him, but while I was speaking the door opened suddenly, and my love stood before me.

She halted there, elegantly dressed, having just returned from her drive, and for a moment we faced each other speechless.

"Mr. Heaton?" she cried, and then, in breathless hurry arising from the sudden and joyful surprise, she rushed forward.

Our hands grasped. For the moment I could utter no word. The secretary, noticing our mutual embarrassment, discreetly withdrew, leaving the door after him.

Once again I found myself, after those six lost years, alone with my love.

"At last!" I cried. "At last I have found you, after all these months!" I was earnestly gazing into her great dark eyes. She smiled at first but little, since that night she met me at The Boltons, when I had discovered the traces of that hideous tragedy.

"And why have you come back to me now?" she queried in a low, strained voice.

"I have striven long and diligently to find you," I answered frankly. "Because, because I wished to tell you how I love you, that I have loved you always, from the first moment that we met."

A grave expression crossed her countenance.

"And yet you forsake me! You doubly broke off the secret engagement that we had mutually made, and left me without a single word. You have married," she added resentfully, "therefore it is scarcely fitting that you should come here with a false declaration upon your lips."

"It is no false declaration. I swear," I cried. "As for my wife, I knew her not, and she is now dead."

"Dead?" she gasped. "You knew her not! I don't understand."

"I have loved you always—always, Princess—for I have only ten minutes ago ascertained your true rank."

"Mabel to you—as always," she said, softly interrupting me.

"Ah, thank you for those words,"

part of an hour; but she sat there, her lovely eyes fixed upon me, her mouth half open, held dumb and motionless by the strange story I unfolded. Once or twice she gave vent to ejaculations of surprise, and I saw that only by dint of supreme effort did she succeed in preserving her self-control. I told her everything. I did not seek to conceal one single fact.

"And he was actually murdered in my house!" she cried, starting up at last. "You were present?"

I explained to her in detail the events of that fateful night.

"Then at last the truth is plain!" she exclaimed. "You have supplied the key to the enigma for which I have been so long in search?"

"Tell me," I said, in breathless earnestness. "All these years I have been striving in vain to solve the problem."

She paused, her dark, fathomless eyes fixed upon me, as though lacking courage to tell me the truth.

"I deceived you, Wilford, from the first," she faltered. "I hid from you the secret of my birth, and it was at my request Colonel Channing—who, of course, knew me well when he was British Attaché at Vienna—refused to tell you the truth. You wonder, of course, that I should live in England incognito. Probably, however, you know that my mother, the late Empress, loved England and the English. She gave me an English name at my baptism, and when only five years of age I was sent here to be educated. At seventeen I returned to Vienna, but soon became tired of the eternal glitter of palace life, and a year or two later, as soon as I was of age and my own mistress, I returned to London, took into my service Mrs. Anson, the widow of an English officer well known to my mother, and in order to preserve my incognito caused her to pass as my mother. I took the house at The Boltons, and only Colonel and Mrs. Channing knew my real station. I was passionately fond of music, and decided to complete my studies, besides which I am intensely fond of London and of life untrammelled by the trammels which must hamper the daughter of an Emperor."

"You preferred a quiet, free life in London to that at your father's Court?"

"Exactly," she answered. "At twenty-one I had had my fill of life at Court, and found existence in London, where I was unknown, far more pleasant. Besides Mrs. Anson, I had a companion—a young Englishwoman who had been governess in a well-known family in Vienna. Her name was Grainger."

"Grainger?" I cried. "Edna Grainger?"

"The same. She was my companion. Well, after I had been established at The Boltons, nearly a year I met, while on a visit to a country house, a young man with whom I became on very friendly terms—Prince Alexander, heir to the throne of Bulgaria. We met often, and although I still passed as Mabel Anson, our acquaintanceship ripened into a mutual affection. With a disregard for the conveniences, I induced Mrs. Anson to invite him on several occasions to The Boltons. One morning, however, I received a private message from Count de Walkenstein-Trosburg, our ambassador here, saying that he had received a cipher telegraphic despatch that my father, the Emperor, was very unwell, and his Excellency suggested that I that I recognized it as one that I had given him. It was that fact which caused me to suspect you."

"Suspect me? Did you believe me guilty of murder?"

"I did not then know that murder had been committed. All that was known was that the heir to the throne had mysteriously disappeared. The terrible truth I have just learnt from your lips. The discovery that the little gift I had made to him was in your possession filled me with suspicion, and in order to solve the mystery I invoked the aid of the police-agent attached to our Embassy, and invited both of you to dine, in order that he might meet you. You will remember the man you met on that night?"

"Hickman?" I cried. "Was he really a police-agent?"

"Yes. He induced you, it appears, to go to a lodging he had taken for the purpose, and without my knowledge gave you a drugged cigar. You fell unconscious, and this enabled him to thoroughly overhaul your pockets, and also to go to your chambers during the night, enter with your latch-key, and make a complete search, the result of which convinced us both that you had no hand in the missing man's disappearance, in spite of the fact that his dress-stud and pencil-case were in your possession. On the following morning, however, when you were but half conscious—Hickman having then returned from making his search at Essex Street—you accidentally struck your head a violent blow on the corner of the stone mantel-shelf. This blow, so severe that they were compelled to remove you to the hospital, apparently affected your brain, for when I met you again a month later you seemed curiously vacant in mind, and had no recollection whatever of the events that had passed."

"I had none, I assure you," I said.

"It seemed marvellous that you should be utterly in ignorance of what followed," she went on, her sweet eyes still gazing deeply into mine. "You told me how you loved me, and I, loving you in return, we entered upon a clandestine engagement that was to be secret from all. A few summer months went by, happy, joyous months, the most blissful in all my life, and then your love suddenly cooled. You had embarked in financial schemes in the City—you were becoming enriched by some concessions in Bulgaria. It was whispered—but your love for me slowly died, and you married a woman twice your age. Can you imagine my feelings? I was heart-broken, Wilford—utterly heart-broken."

"But I knew not what I was doing," I hastened to declare. "I loved you always—always. My brain had been injured by that blow, and all my tastes and feelings thereby became inverted."

"I remained in England a few weeks longer, wandered aimlessly hither and thither, and then at last returned to Vienna and plunged into the vortex of gaiety at Court, in order to forget my sorrow."

"And that woman Grainger? What of her?"

"She left my service about a month after that night when you met with your accident at The Bol-

SPREAD OF THE DOCTRINE.

ALWAYS WASTE.

"Did you say that your cook was going into a decline?"

"No; I said from the way things were disappearing, I concluded that she was wasting away."

A DUBIOUS PROPOSITION.

"Is the man you pointed out to him a law-abiding person?"

"I don't know that you could call him that, yet he fairly lives in the courts."

THE WAY OF IT.

"The caddish fellow you dislike so much insists that he is descended from noble stock. From the ancient kings of Ireland, I believe."

"How is he descended from them?"

"I don't know, unless it was with a dull, sickening thud."

Attacks of cholera and dysentery come quickly, there seldom being any warning of the visit. Remedial action must be taken just as quickly if the patient is to be spared great suffering and permanent injury to the lining membranes of the bowels. The readiest preparation for the purpose is Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. It can be got at small cost at any drug store or general dealer's, and it will afford relief before a doctor can be called.

AS IT SOMETIMES DOES.

A LOOK AHEAD.

O, listen to the little bird,
That singeth in the sun;
It knoweth it can fly away

As soon as summer's done
From furnaces and slushy walks,
And stay away till spring,
So listen to the lucky bird—
No wonder it doth sing.

HER TRUE MEANING.

When a woman declares
She has nothing to wear,
What she really means is
She has nothing to air.

The person who buys any other tea always hopes it will be "as good" as "Salada."

THE TORTURES OF NERVOUSNESS

The Sufferer Feels That Unless Relief Comes Insanity Will Follow.

There is no torture more intolerable than nervousness. A nervous person is in a state of constant irritation by day and sleeplessness by night. The sufferer starts at every noise, is shaky and depressed. Often although in a completely exhausted state is unable to sit or lie still, or trouble of this kind absolutely the best thing in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The nerves are jaded and jangled because they are being starved by poor watery blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new rich blood which feeds and soothes the irritated nerves. There is absolutely no doubt about this; thousands can testify of the blood-making, nerve-restoring qualities of these Pills, among them is Mrs. Thos. Harpell, Wallace Bridge, N. S., who says:—"Some years ago I took sick and the doctor pronounced the trouble nervous prostration. To describe the tortures of it is impossible. God and myself only know what I endured. The doctor gave me medicine but it did not seem to help me. Then he ordered me away for a change, but I was afraid to go, as I always seemed to fear some impending calamity, and was afraid to spend the night alone, as I used to think each night that I would die before morning. I tried different kinds of medicines but with no better results, and finally decided I would go to my parents to see if the change would benefit me. I went to their doctor but with no better results. My mother urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and got me a box, of course I did not expect a box would help me, but I continued taking them and in about a month began to feel better, from that on there was an improvement in my condition every day, and in the course of about three months I was again enjoying the great blessing of perfect health. I gained about twenty pounds in weight and my friends could hardly believe I was the same person. I believe I would have been in my grave long ago if it had not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are good for any disease due to bad blood or weak nerves. That is why they cure such troubles as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, paralysis, and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood. Sold by medicine dealers at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 or may be had by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ON THE FARM

WEANING FOALS.

Foals, as a rule, had better be weaned at five to six months old. They should be used to being kept in a box stall with the dam part of each day for some time before weaning, and while the mare is this reason it makes a far better cover crop than rye.

There is no labor more universal among cultivators than the attempted destruction of weeds and there is none which is commonly gone about with more irregularity and want of system. Weeds infest nearly all cultivated grounds, and their destruction is generally attempted after they have grown a foot high, more or less, either by laborious hand labor, or more rapidly but more imperfectly with the work of horses. In the garden, it is mostly performed, if at all, by the hand; in the large cornfield the plow and cultivator turn over or tear up the large weeds and leave many untouched. The true management should be the commencement of this labor with the planting or sowing of the crop.

REGULARITY IN FEEDING.

A horse that is fed regularly will be in better condition on three measures of oats in the day than one that is fed irregularly will be on four. He knows exactly when his attendant will feed him, and does not weary for his meals; whereas a horse that is fed at any or all times is never really satisfied, and will worry while waiting for his careless attendant and his meals. Irregularity in feeding is also a productive cause of many stable vices. No more straw or hay should be placed before a horse in the morning than he will eat up cleanly in an hour, a less quantity should be given at midday, and in the evening she should never get any more than will reasonably serve him over right. Regularity in feeding is important in any class of live stock in insuring the best results.

BEST IVORY FROM AFRICA.

Ivory comes from hippopotamus teeth, walrus tusks, narwhal horns, whales' teeth and boars' tusks. At present ivory costs about $7,200 a ton; the price of billiard ball ivory has reached the record figure of $860 a hundredweight. The best ivory comes from Africa. Mammoth tusks are found in extraordinary abundance in Siberia principally, but they are not very highly esteemed though they run to an enormous size and indeed hold the record, being sometimes twelve feet long and weighing 200 pounds. The natives of Africa regard ivory as the standard of wealth and store it up in their villages for hundreds of years, constantly adding to their stock, and thus the supply continues and will continue for many years.

Singer Talks

7. Singer First Cost is the Whole Cost

- ¶ Of course you can buy a sewing machine for less money than you would pay for a Singer—all the world knows that. But consider this: When a Singer is bought and paid for, it is paid for—it lasts a lifetime.
- ¶ A cheap machine is never paid for. Every cent expended for repairs must be added to the original cost—it's an endless system of instalments. These instalments, added to the first cost of the machine, soon exceed the cost of a Singer, and after each successive repair (if you can get another part) the cheap machine grows more and more second-hand—one step nearer the junk heap.
- ¶ The time lost, the trouble and the worry outweigh many times over the difference in the cost between the "cheap" machine and the Singer.
- ¶ There are two kinds of machines—good and bad—and the good kind is the Singer.

WEANING FOALS.

Foals, as a rule, had better be weaned at five to six months old. They should be used to being kept in a box stall with the dam part of each day for some time before weaning, and, while the mare is tied, some chopped oats and bran kept in a box or manger for the foal to nibble at. If the mare is needed for work, she may be returned to the foal twice or three times a day, and then less frequently each day, thus drying her gradually, or, as some prefer, the foal may be weaned by taking it away from its dam at once, for good and all, provided it has previously learned to eat and drink, in which case the mare should be kept far enough away to prevent her hearing the foal call, and milked twice a day at first, and later once a day, to avoid trouble from mammitis, till she is sufficiently dry to be safe. If there are two foals on the farm to be weaned, it is better to keep them together for company, as one is likely to worry from loneliness. After the dry season is over, it is good practice to allow the foal the run of a yard or paddock daily for exercise, and it should be fed regularly a fairly liberal ration of a mixture of chopped oats and bran, and, if available, a carrot or two, in addition to what good sweet clover hay it will clean up between meals. This treatment should be continued through the winter, the amount of grain and other feed being gradually increased as the foal grows older. Attention should be given to his hoofs, which will be liable to grow long and unshapely unless trimmed and rasped occasionally to keep them in good shape.

FARM NOTES.

In filling walls with sawdust, whether for silos, icehouses or root-bins, the sawdust should be dry and well packed down, or it will shrink and settle and leave empty spaces. There is such a thing as being too economical about the expenditure of money for farm tools. True, tools of all kinds cost. And yet, the man who expects to keep up with the procession in these days of sharp competition must be prepared with the latest improved farm implements to do his work promptly and in season.

Rye can be sowed for a cover crop as late as October, but the earlier it is sown the better growth it will make and the more perfectly it will cover the ground. When plowed under, rye adds nothing to the soil but organic matter made from plant food already in the soil. On the other hand, crimson clover, being a legume, takes nitrogen from the air and stores it up in the soil. For generally, and shall continue to use it for such. Yours sincerely,

A COUNTERFEITING OUTFIT

Plates Unearthed of Seven Banks and Nearly $4,000 in Bogus Notes.

A despatch from Buffalo, N. Y., says: One of the most complete counterfeiting plants ever discovered in this country was unearthed on Wednesday afternoon by United States and Canadian Secret Service officers in a secluded spot on a small farm a few miles outside of Gowanda, Cattaraugus County. It was operated by Thomas Washington Crozier and his son, Milton, who were arrested the other day at Oakville, Ont. More arrests will follow.

W. L. Gammon, of the United States Secret Service, and James Parkinson, inspector for the Dominion Secret Service, went out to the farm early on Wednesday morning and began their hunt. Hour after hour it was kept up, and late in the afternoon their efforts were rewarded. Hidden away in an outhouse they discovered the most incriminating testimony, and returned to Buffalo with a complete counterfeiting outfit.

The capture included 150 Farmers Bank of Canada $10 notes; 80 Farmers Bank of Canada $5 notes; 100 Standard Bank of Canada notes for $10; and 138 United States $5 silver certificates; making a total of $3,645.

PLATES OF SEVEN BANKS.

In the deserted old house were also discovered rubber stamps and letters, 47 engraving tools, one set of United States silver certificates with $5 plates; one set of Imperial Bank of Canada $10 plates; one set of Crown Bank of Canada $5 plates; one set of Quebec Bank of Canada $10 plates; one set of Standard Bank of Canada $10 plates; one set of Farmers Bank $10 plates, and a set of the same bank's $5 plates.

The officers also found buried under an old barn on the premises a front plate of the United Empire Bank of Canada $5 notes, and parts of finished and unfinished plates.

According to the officers, the elder Crozier bought the Cattaraugus farm last Summer, and while on his way from Canada always stopped off in Buffalo to drop a little of the queer. The counterfeiter passed United States bills in Canada, and Canadian money over here.

FLAMES HEMMED IN TRAIN

Awful Fate of Refugees Seeking to Escape From Burning Town.

A despatch from Detroit says: Seventeen people are known to have perished when a relief train on the Detroit & Mackinaw Railroad, carrying refugees from forest fires in upper Michigan, ran off the tracks right in the midst of a burning pine forest. Unconfirmed reports say nearly every one on the train perished. Bishop Williams of Detroit was reported to have been on the wrecked train, but later advices show that he is safe. Fifteen burned skulls were found in a steel gondola car. When the cars left the rails the train crew and passengers found themselves trapped on all sides by the raging flames through which no human being could pass and live. Fireman Lee took refuge in the water tank, and when the flames closed round it he was boiled to death. The whole country north and west of Alpena is being swept by the most serious fire in years.

RELIEF TRAIN DERAILED.

A despatch from Alpena, Mich., says: Twelve out of the seventeen persons who lost their lives in the forest fires north of here on Thursday night belonged to the town of Metz. The whole town was ablaze and a train of eight or nine wooden cars and a steel gondola was made up to take the people out. Thirty or forty men, women and children, with a mass of household effects, were crowded into the gondola and the train started with a wall of fire on either side. At Nowickis Siding the rails spread and the engine went into the roadbed. The flames immediately swept over the train, setting fire to the wooden cars and the household goods in the gondola. Three mothers and their nine children remained in the steel car and were cremated there. Engineer John Kinville of Alpena and another member of the train crew escaped by crawling on their hands and knees along the track. A number of passengers badly cut and burned made their way to the village of Posen, between here and the scene of the wreck. It is not known whether any of them perished after leaving the train or not.

YOUNG FOLKS

CURING ROSA MAY.

On the morning when Bessie Norton was six years old she came down to breakfast to find a long box all tied up in pink paper, with a string that was like a little gold chain. The box stood on the table by Bessie's plate, and there was a card on it, with some writing. Bessie could read print, if the words were not too long, but she had not yet learned to read writing; so she ran to her mother with the card and asked her to read it.

"It says, 'For Bessie, with best wishes for many happy birthdays,'" said mother, and then she helped untie the gold string and take off the pink paper.

When at last the box was open, there appeared the most beautiful paper doll that Bessie had ever seen. She had lovely golden hair, curling in little ringlets all over her head, and her eyes were large and blue and her cheeks like blush roses, and with her were all kinds of beautiful dresses. There was a light pink one for parties, with a hat to match, and a plain dark blue sailor suit for every-day wear, and two dainty white ones to dress up in in the afternoon. Each one had a hat to go with it, and there were also lots of dainty lace underclothes, and two hand-bags and a parasol.

Bessie was so happy that she could hardly wait to eat her breakfast. As soon as it was over she took the beautiful doll, which she had named Rosa May, and went with her to the house of her playmate, Nellie Baker, who lived next door. All that day the two played together with Rosa May under the trees, and in the afternoon they gave a party, because you see, it was Rosa May's birthday just as much as it was Bessie's.

Many other days they played together, too, and Rosa May always had the best of care, and was taken into the house and put to bed at the right hour. But at last there came a day when a band came marching by, playing beautifully, while Bessie was dressing Rosa May. She ran out to the fence, and then followed a little way down the street, and when she came back her mother called her in to supper, and poor Rosa May was forgotten.

It rained hard all that night, but of course Bessie did not know it, for she was asleep. But the next morning she looked everywhere for Rosa May, and could not find her. At last she went out under the trees and there she found the poor doll, where she had lain all night in the rain.

It was a sad, sad sight. One blue eye was all washed out, and the other was nearly gone. Her right arm was doubled back under her and was broken, both legs were all twisted, so she could never stand up straight again, and in place of her pretty rosy lips there was only a great ugly red mark.

Bessie sat down beside her dear Rosa May and began to cry. Of course she could not help it. No little girl could. She cried so hard that she did not hear the sound of footsteps coming nearer, and she did not know there was any one about until a pleasant voice said, "My, my, dear little girl, what is Discovered Broken Rail on her Way to School.

A despatch from Fillmore, Sask., says: Alice Potter, aged eleven years, was on a recent morning proceeding along the railway track to school. The child had not gone more than a mile when she noticed a broken rail. At once realizing the danger to the eastbound train, the child no longer thought of school and her lessons, but the lives of those on board. She at once rushed home, with the train even at that time in sight. On reaching her home, which was located at the side of the track, she informed her father of what she had seen and asked him if he would stop the train. The father at once rushed in the direction of the fast approaching train, and succeeded in flagging it and bringing it to a standstill. It is reported that the C. P. R. authorities are investigating the matter and are going to reward the child.

THE AUSTRALIAN BUDGET.

Commonwealth's Foreign Trade for Years Was £123,000,000

A despatch from Melbourne, Australia, says: Sir William Lyne, delivering the budget statement on Wednesday, said the unprecedentedly large customs revenue of £11,645,000 was attributable to the new tariff and the higher price of products. Sir William pointed out that Australia's imports were £51,000,000 and her exports £72,000,000, while the corresponding Canadian figures were £60,000,000 and £52,000,000.

PEACE IS NOW ASSURED

If Servia Keeps Quiet Her Interests Will be Safeguarded.

A despatch from London says: A special to the Times from St. Petersburg says that the Russian Government has sent a note to Servia and Montenegro, promising to safeguard their interests at the forthcoming conference, and expressing the hope that this promise will induce them to avoid a rash policy.

SHE STANDS ALONE.

A despatch from Paris says: A special despatch from Constantinople states that the German Ambassador has declared to Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish Foreign Minister, that Germany would follow the line of conduct adopted by Great Britain regarding the annexation by Austria of Bosnia and Herzegovina. As a consequence of the attitude of the powers, Austria-Hungary now stands alone.

AUSTRIA HOLDS BACK.

A despatch from Berlin says: Neither Austria-Hungary nor Turkey has yet given its consent to the proposed international conference to settle the existing situation in the near east. Austria-Hungary declines to participate unless it is agreed that the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina be not discussed and accepted and legalized by the powers without debate. Turkey desires a free hand in Macedonia, as well as cash compensation from Bulgaria for the Oriental Railroad in Eastern Russia and some other outstanding claims. All the powers are in favor of a fixed programme, and a majority of them are inclined to omit from the discussions the question of the passage of the Dardanelles and the Cretan proclamation for union with Greece.

Germany Said to Plan Revenge on England.

A despatch from London says: The Iron and Steel Trades Journal understands that in consequence of the new British patents law, under which foreign patented articles cannot be sold in Great Britain unless manufactured here, a syndicate of German, American, Russian and French capitalists is forming for the purpose of acquiring factories in England in which foreign articles patented in Britain will be manufactured and sold at cost price. The syndicate will charge a small commission on its sales and will save owners of inventions the enormous expense of keeping up their own factories in England.

EXPLOSION OCCURRED.

Peculiar Accident in the Tweed Public School.

A despatch from Tweed, Ont., says: A peculiar accident occurred at the Public school here on Wednesday afternoon, when the principal, Mr. Blake, was conducting a chemical experiment. He was passing ozone through a glass tube containing logwood in order to show its bleaching powers, when an explosion occurred. Glass and acid flew in all directions about the room. Mr. Blake's hands and face were cut in a score of places and several of the scholars were also more or less injured. No serious results, however, are anticipated in any case. Colin Helm, son of Mr. H. P. Helm, local manager of the Bank of Montreal, was badly burned about the face and eyes.

THE SITUATION AT A GLANCE.

A despatch from London says: The new Europe consists of six great powers equally divided into two groups. Neither of these two groups, nor a single one of their components, desires war, yet the world's peace stands in greater danger to-day than at any moment in the present generation. The past week's events have noticeably diminished that peril. They have established a generally line of cleavage and they have transferred the point of the acutest irritation from Bulgaria to Constantinople. The question of the hour is whether the splendid qualities of restraint shown by regenerated Turkey will endure the strain of another ten days. If they can and do then the danger of immediate war will have disappeared. The powers will then take up the thankless task of attempting to reconcile irreconcilable interests.

MEN WERE SCARCE.

Scarcity of Labor Delays Work on the T. & N. O.

A despatch from Toronto says: The construction of the T. & N. O. Railway northward has just about reached the National Transcontinental Railway. At present the work has practically been completed to the "Y" joining the other road. The work has been delayed because of a minor strike, and it was found very difficult to procure men. The commission desired 100 men, and with a view to securing these strenuous efforts were made in Toronto. The wages offered were $1.75 a day, and only about 40 men could be obtained. In addition, the men were promised their fares both ways if they served the time stipulated in the agreement.

Rosa May and began to cry. Of course she could not help it. No little girl could. She cried so hard that she did not hear the sound of footsteps coming nearer, and she did not know there was any one about until a pleasant voice said, "My, my, dear little girl, what is the trouble?" The voice came from a pleasant-faced young man, who had a little box, like a trunk, in one hand, and a big light-colored umbrella and a bundle of sticks under his arm.

Bessie showed him her poor Rosa May, through her tears. He took the doll tenderly in his hands, and said, "Well, well, she has met with a very bad accident, I see, but I think perhaps I can cure her."

"Oh, can you?" cried Bessie. "Are you a doctor?"

The young man laughed. "Yes," he said, "I think I can cure this patient if you will let me operate just as I think best."

"Oh, yes, sir," cried Bessie.

"You can, if you will only cure Rosa May."

The young man took out a little pair of scissors, and then opened his box and found some smooth, stiff white cardboard. Then he took poor Rosa May and cut her head right off. Bessie almost cried right out at this, but the young man was smiling so pleasantly that she did not. He took the cardboard and cut out a new head, just like the old one, and then with a little glue from his box he fastened it on to Rosa May's body, so you could hardly see the place. Next there came out of the wonderful box a bundle of little tubes of paint which he mixed in a small china pan, and in a few minutes the new face had two big blue eyes and a rosebud mouth and curly, golden hair and a pair of pink cheeks—just as Rosa May had had at first.

By this time Bessie was so happy that she was dancing up and down, and when the young man cut off one arm and both legs of Rosa May she did not mind at all, because she knew he would make new ones as good as the others had been at first. And he did, so that no one would ever have known that Rosa May had ever had any accident or been sick.

Bessie thanked him over and over again. She asked him if he was going to doctor some one else, and he laughed and said no, he was going to paint a picture. As he turned away he said, "You must be careful not to leave Rosa May out at night again, for young children like her take cold, and sometimes you can't get a doctor who knows how to cure them."—Youth's Companion.

Shocking Accident on C. P. R. Near Stickney, N. B.

A despatch from Woodstock, N. B., says: During a dense fog on Saturday two C.P.R. freight trains collided head-on near Stickney. Robert Johnson, St. John, fireman, was burned to death, and Chas. Humphrey, Woodstock, engineer, was fatally injured and died a short time after. Fireman Johnson was caught between the tender and the firebox, and roasted alive, while he piteously begged the train men to kill him, and put him out of his agony. One leg was burned off before he was extricated. Humphrey had both legs and his back broken. Conductor Taylor was injured about the head and face. The engineer and fireman on the other train jumped and saved their lives.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Big muffs will prevail again. Both jabot and collar grow larger.

Red trimmings will adorn many black slippers.

Belts are somewhat narrower than in the summer.

Marten and black fox are the favorite small furs.

Ottoman hats are more to the front than in years.

Collars are offered to match plumage covered hats.

With colored shoes there must be stockings to match.

Braid and covered buttons are favorites for trimming.

Most walking hats are turned up on the left side only.

The plaited braid belt is one of the season's novelties.

Simplicity will be the slogan of the winter's millinery.

Plaids are much worn and form some of the smartest fall suits.

Long sleeves are invariable with the new tailored shirtwaists.

Most of the new coats are perfectly straight all around the lower edge.

The blouse that matches the suit has to some extent, replaced the separate blouse.

Shoes with patent leather vamp and cloth tops will figure prominently this winter.

Velvet and silk dahlias, in both natural and fancy colors, are seen in many smart hats.

Felt is seen occasionally in hats, but is by no means so prominent as satin, ottoman, and cloth.

Some of the ostrich plumes on the larger hats are immense, but they are mostly used in medium lengths.

New fancy plaids include such combinations as browns and greens, deep peacock blues and slaty grays.

Party frocks for small girls are made with puffed sleeves and low necks, which droop over the shoulder.

The fichu effect is employed extensively in the development of the lack of the elaborate empire gowns.

Various shades of brown and green hose are being shown for wear with heavy fall tan oxford ties.

Turbans range in size from medium to very large. The box shapes, with protruding crowns, are most in favor.

Latest tailor made coats have frilled sleeves and a finely plaited full is the most piquant addition to the upturned cuff.

Khaki, buff, suede, and all tones of yellow are in vogue in the late hats, their brazenness being generally toned with other colors.

Small hats are few, and those that find favor at all have high crowns and narrow mushroom brims, similar to those of last spring.

While all other colors come and go, the navy blue suit of tailored finish remains as a standard, and the girl who wears it nearly always looks well dressed.

Many shortwaist sleeves are buttoned from shoulder to waist—not altogether for ornamental purposes, but largely because the buttons make the long sleeve much easier

SEVENTY MILES OF FLAME

Terrible Forest Fires Are Raging in Northern Michigan.

A despatch from Detroit says: Despatches from Alpena indicate that the number of deaths in the forest fires in Presque Isle and Alpena counties will exceed fifty and may run well up towards one hundred.

It is reported that there is a solid wall of flame stretching 70 miles from Gaylord to Alpena. In the vicinity of Metz, Bolton and Posen the fires have burned sufficiently to leave several hundred women and children camping with comparative safety in the open fields, but near the city of Alpena on Saturday night the fires were so threatening that Mayor McKnight called out a volunteer force of several hundred with shovels to form a patrol and construct trenches to stay the progress of the flames in the direction of the city.

It is now estimated that 23 people lost their lives in the destruction of the ill-fated Metz relief train Thursday evening.

With the certainty that a sudden drop in temperature would bring untold distress upon the half-clothed victims huddled in temporary shelters in the open fields, every effort is being made to organize a comprehensive system of relief measures. On Sunday the Detroit & Mackinac Railroad sent out three cars of provisions to be distributed among the stricken.

It is estimated that at least 500 people are utterly dependent upon assistance contributed from outside the burned district.

JAPAN THREATENS CHINA

Serious Trouble Arising Out of a Fight Between Soldiers.

A despatch from Seoul, Corea, says: A serious fight between Chinese and Japanese soldiers at Kantoo, Northern China, threatens to result in trouble between China and Japan. The details and date of the fight are not accurately known, but it is reported that the Chinese were the aggressors. They fired a fusillade at a police station occupied by Japanese troops. After fighting for several hours, men on both sides being killed or wounded, the Chinese withdrew. The Japanese were reinforced later, and prepared to pursue the Chinese. They apparently gave notice of their intention to the Pekin authorities, whereupon China forbade their entering Chinese territory. Japan protested, and it is reported she declared that unless she was given immediate satisfaction Japanese troops would cross the frontier.

ATTACKED A FARMER'S WIFE.

Tramp Kneeked Her Unconscious in Kitchen of Her Home.

A despatch from Brockville says: Mrs. William Charlton, the wife of a farmer residing on the Mail Road, west of Brockville, on Friday morning was assaulted in a brutal manner by an unknown tramp. At 5.30, while her husband was milking in the barn the tramp appeared at the house and asked for something to eat. She took him in and was in the act of preparing a meal when the stranger, seeing she was alone, suddenly changed his mind, demanding that he be given money instead of food. Mrs. Charlton positively refused, whereupon the tramp seized her by the throat. In the struggle she managed to break away and ran for the door. The tramp followed and felled her to the floor with blows on the back, rendering her unconscious. How long she remained in that condition is not known, but on coming to her senses the man had departed. Mrs. Charlton at once notified her husband and a hurried search of the neighborhood failed to find trace of the scoundrel. It was subsequently discovered the tramp had found $1.60 on a shelf, which he appropriated. Mrs. Charlton has furnished the police with a description of the Remarkable Increases in Assessment of Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: What is considered to be the most important civic report of the year was completed at the City Hall on Wednesday. It shows the nancial growth of the city in the matter of increased real estate values for the present year. The report shows that the total increase in values in real estate for this year has been no less than $19,687,572. This is considered to be the most remarkable, especially as the real estate increases in 1907 amounted to over twenty-one millions over 1906. Owing to the city's borrowing power not being over fifteen per cent. of the assessed valuation, the corporation will be able to borrow a huge amount on the increased values of this year. The amount borrowed will be spent on further improving the condition of the roads, laying sewers, etc., in 1909.

SPILLED MILK IN SEWER.

Rigid System of Inspection Inaugurated in Detroit.

A despatch from Detroit says: A rigid system of milk inspection was inaugurated in Detroit on Friday by Health Officer Kiefer in a crusade against unhygienic surroundings. The idea, Dr. Kiefer says, he got from the Canadian cities where the inspection of milk for public consumption is most thorough. Impure milk is believed to be responsible for the alarming spread of typhoid in and around Detroit, and every gallon of milk from now on will be tested before being sold. One lot of a hundred gallons of rich looking milk was seized by the inspectors early on Friday morning and dumped into the sewer, and the seizures will be continued until conditions come up to the required standard.

finish remains as a standard, and the girl who wears it nearly always looks well dressed.

Many shortwaist sleeves are buttoned from shoulder to waist—not altogether for ornamental purposes, but largely because the buttons make the long sleeve much easier of adjustment.

Dull shades, such as wisteria and eggplant, are favorites in the season's cloaks, and though the garments are highly elaborate in designs, not a great deal of trimming is favored.

Silk, net, and several different kinds of laces are freely mingled in blouses, the fancy for mingling different materials which prevailed last year being not at all diminished.

The latest word of the girldly sash is that it shall be formed of three and a half yards of wide, soft ribbon, draped about the high waist, crossed and pinned at the right and the ends brought around and tied on the left hip.

Wide ribbon—up to seven inches—plays an important part in the arrangement of little girls' hair, present styles demanding at least two or three bows, and their coiffures are therefore almost as elaborate as those of grownups.

Lace mitts have come back into fashion, but they are different from the mitts of the olden days. They are saucy and flippant. The best ones are of real lace, edged around the top with the ruche that has taken a place in so many articles of dress. They also have little loops of ribbon to make them look as if they belonged to the sleeve of the dress.

300 LIVES WERE LOST.

Typhoon Had Deadly Effect in Chinese City.

A despatch from Amoy, China, says: Native reports received here from Chang-Chow are to the effect that more than 300 lives were lost in that city as the result of Thursday's typhoon.

A CONDITIONAL GIFT.

Daughters of Empire Give $10,000 to Fight White Plague.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Daughters of the Empire have donated $10,000 to the funds of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, of Ottawa, on condition that a further $20,000 be raised.

BOYS EATING CORBITE.

Startling Discovery Made by London School Principal.

A despatch from London, Ont., says: Principal Wyatt of St. George's school discovered on Wednesday afternoon that a number of his pupils had been eating corbites taken from cartridges. One boy ate so much of it that at noon he fainted. The culprits, when questioned about it, said they had read about the alleged murderer, Private Moir, eating the stuff and were sampling it to observe its effects.

SUMMONED TO THEIR SHIPS.

Men of British Home Fleet on Leave Suddenly Recalled.

A despatch from London says: All the men of the home fleet absent from their ships on liberty have been suddenly recalled. Inasmuch as the reason for this has not yet been ascertained, the order has caused considerable excitement.

ton at once notified her husband and a hurried search of the neighborhood failed to find trace of the seconded. It was subsequently discovered the tramp had found $1.66 on a shelf, which he appropriated. Mrs. Charlton has furnished the police with a description of the man, who so far has escaped arrest.

FIVE HURT IN DERAILMENT.

A Mixed Train Was Ditched Near Allandale.

A despatch from Barrie says: Three coaches of a mixed train, No. 42, from Meaford, left the rails half a mile north of Allandale, at 1:30 on Thursday afternoon. Five passengers were more or less injured. Mrs. John Wilton, of Meaford, 75 years of age, being the most serious. She sustained a broken arm, a broken leg and other injuries. Percy Herment, of 150 Wilton Avenue, Toronto, had his head cut and was otherwise bruised. Mrs. John Patis, of Collingwood, ankle hurt. Miss Hutson, of Parkhill, arm broken and otherwise injured. The train was running about 25 miles an hour on a level track when the rear trucks of the last coach left the rails, bringing the other coaches after it. The coaches turned on their sides.

RUSH TO STURGEON LAKE.

The Reports of Gold Finds are Very Encouraging.

A despatch from Port Arthur says: Gold prospectors are quietly dropping into the Sturgeon Lake district, and among these are many who have been prospecting in and around Cobalt. Men who have come out from the works of the Grand Trunk Pacific say that there are many looking for the precious metal, and that a large number of them will stay in the country all winter. Some of these who have visited the camps say that there are sure to be many more and richer finds, and that within a very short time there will be a gold rush into the country which will rival some of those which have now become historical. Several parties have left Port Arthur in the past few days for fields of promise, and have outfitted with the intention of staying all winter.

Japanese soldiers in Corea slew twenty-two Koreans friendly to Japan, mistaking them for insurgents.

IGNORED THE SPEAKER.

Laborite Member Carried From the British Commons.

A despatch from London says: In the House of Commons on Thursday Albert Victor Grayson, Socialist and Laborite, from Yorkshire, constantly ignored the Speaker and his calls to order, and continued to call the attention of the House to the fact that there were people starving on the streets. To the members who were insisting that he sit down, he retorted: "It is all very well for you to cry order, you, who are well fed." Finally the Speaker called on the Sergeant-at-Arms to remove Grayson. While he was being carried out bodily he shouted, addressing the Laborites: "I call upon the traitors to their class who have refused to stand by their class to stand by me."

SPREADING ALL OVER TURKEY.

Austrian Boycott Has Reached Serious Proportions.

A despatch from Vienna says: The anti-Austrian boycott in Turkey is causing consternation among Austrian traders, and angering the public. It is reported to be spreading to Syria, Smyrna, Salonica, and other parts of Turkey, and Austrian traders at those places have, it is alleged, been threatening with violence. The Turks maintain their refusal to handle Austrian traffic, and the Austrian Lloyds and other Austrian ships can neither embark nor disembark passengers, mails or freight. An Austrian steamer arriving at Jaffa had to land her own mails and passengers. A mob afterwards attacked the Austrian post-office there, and smashed the mail boxes and mail carts.

FELL DEAD ON STREET.

Sudden End of Well Known Dentist of Capital.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Dr. John C. Bower, a well known local dentist, dropped dead on Thursday night while walking down Sparks Street in company with a couple of friends. Deceased was returning home from a meeting of the Ottawa Dental Association at the time. He is survived by a widow and four children.

HINDUS TO BE SENT AWAY

Plan to Ship Them to British Honduras Sugar Plantations.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The despatch from Vancouver, stating that the Canadian and Imperial Governments have co-operated to bring about a happy solution of the Hindu problem in British Columbia, is officially confirmed at the Department of the Interior.

In previous years it has been the practice for the British West Indian colonies to import each year for work on the sugar plantations a number of coolies from India, chiefly from Calcutta. It is now proposed by the arrangement reached between the Governments of Canada, Great Britain and British Honduras, that this year, instead of obtaining coolies from Calcutta, they shall be shipped from Vancouver.

Mr. Harkin left Vancouver on Thursday, and will proceed to Honduras via New Orleans. As soon as all arrangements can be completed, the Hindus now in British Columbia will be transferred to Honduras at the cost of the three Governments.

JOHN F. PARKS.

The funeral of the late John F. Parks, Hay Bay, who died Friday last, took place on Sunday afternoon at Riverside cemetery, Napanee. The deceased was well and favorably known throughout the township of Adolphustown, having lived there many years. He was seventy-two years of age and leaves besides his wife, a family of three daughters and one son. The daughters are; Mrs. Bowen Perry, Mrs. William Hamby and Mrs. John Hamby and Newton Parks. A. C. and C. B. Parks, of Hay Bay, are brothers of deceased. The funeral services were held at the house, Rev. Mr. DeMille officiating. Deceased was a consistent member of the Methodist church. The funeral was largely attended on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Jennina Jane Hawley, an aged resident of Gosport, passed away at her home there on Sunday, aged seventy-seven years. Mrs. Hawley's husband predeceased her a number of years ago, also one son, Mr. Gilson Hawley passed away a couple of years ago. Mrs. Alf Rendell, her daughter, is the only member of the family remaining. The funeral took place on Tuesday to Riverside cemetery, Napanee.

At the Liberal Committee rooms on Friday evening last Mr. G. A. Aylsworth, Newburgh, Emigration Agent, to Great Britain, gave a splendid address on his work in the old land, which was very much appreciated by the large number of people present. A number of others short speeches were also delivered. This evening will be the last rally of the campaign when Mr. Richardson, a splendid speaker from Kingston, and Mr. F. S. Wartman will address the gathering.

We sympathize with the family of Mr. M. T. Vanslyck from which death has removed their only son, Charlie R. Vanslyck, who died of a short illness of typhoid fever only. All through he said whatever the Lord saw fit to do he was willing and at last he said I will soon be with my brother Henry, who died eight years ago. He leaves a delicate wife and one daughter, a father and mother and three sisters to mourn. He just came from the west this spring on account of his wife's health. He was the leader of the choir at Perry Grove and his wife was organist until her health gave out. He is now dead but only gone before and will not be grieved as on the other shore, where pain and sickness never shall enter, grief nor weep nor shall share. —Com.

This Is Said

To Help Many.

Mix This Simple, Helpful Recipe at Home and Try It, Anyway.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered as the most certain prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home, when asked, stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommend it as harmless.
